

BeHeard Boulder

From May 3, 2018 to June 1, 2018, the city's public engagement platform, BeHeard Boulder, featured the project on their landing page. The project provided the May 3, 2018 open house comment form online as a survey, asking the public the same questions as at that open house:

- Their thoughts on the underpass concepts
- What on-street improvements are important to include in the project
- What else the project team should consider as the project moved forward

7 comments were received through BeHeard Boulder.

2 supported the "L" underpass concept, 1 supported the diagonal underpass concept, and 3 opposed the project. Those who opposed the project stated it was unnecessary or a waste of money.

Regarding on-street improvements, requests were made for:

- buffered or protected and vertically separated bike facilities (2)
- dedicated left-turn signals at the 30th & Colorado intersection (1)
- public art and urban design be incorporated into the project (1)

Others concerns shared were for the timing and construction impacts of project construction.
