C.

Planning Process

C.1 Guidelines for the Planning Process

The following guidelines were created to shape the planning process in reflecting the city's priorities for the development of the Community Cultural Plan:

As a "Community Cultural Plan," the project has a city-wide perspective and an extensive time-horizon. The Plan will seek to answer the question "What is the community's vision for arts, culture and the creative industries?"

Transparency and good stewardship of the public trust will ensure the inclusion of the community's voice and encourage the continued support for the implementation of this plan.

Focus areas for the plan may include public art, the creative sector of the economy, funding, sustainable cultural tourism, and the vibrancy of street-level experiences.

The process will be open and forthcoming, taking best advantage of the City of Boulder's collaborative professional culture.

The City-wide priorities of advancing sustainable and resilient practices, encouraging diversity, and promoting the success of Boulder communities will be foundations for the process.

C.2 Staff, Consultants, and Participants

Appreciation is due to the many people who helped with the Community Cultural Plan:

Thanks to the thousands of residents who participated by giving their opinions, filling out surveys, joining the online conversation, and commenting on the Community Cultural Plan at various points along the way.

Thanks to the many talented experts, stakeholders, and community activists who were interviewed through the course of this plan, including: Mark and Polly Addison, Robin Beeck, Kathy Beeck, Joan Breummer, Annette Coleman, Aaron Cook, Brian Coppom, Joe deRaimes, Bruce Dierking, Nick Forster, Donna Gartenmann, Alicia Gibb, Sue Hammond, Kent Hansen, Carrie Haverfield, Josie Heath, Kathy Jones, Kathy Kuscan, Melinda Mattingly, Deana Miller, Sacha Millstone, Lisa Nesmith, Judy Reid, Bill Rigler, and Amanda Berg Wilson.

Thanks to the staff members of the many City of Boulder agencies who assisted in this process. Most particularly we appreciate the staff of the Office of Arts + Culture: Juliette Bartsch, Joel Haertling, Greg Ravenwood, and in particular Mary Fowler and Mary Wohl Haan who both played a critical role in the operation of the planning process.

Thanks to the members of Cultural Planning Group especially Martin Cohen, Linda Flynn, and Jerry Allen. Their expertise, talents, and thoughtfulness contributed to the success of the process.

Thanks to the many leaders of Boulder's community of non-profit cultural organizations who participated in a special series of "cultural summits" to review and comment on the drafting of the Community Cultural Plan: Dairy Center for the Arts: Bill Obermeier, Raissa Johnson, Sharon Nehls – Cudmudgeonly Press: Clara Burns – LOCAL Theater Company: Megan Mathews, Sallie Smith – Language of Fish Collective Arts: Soleil Chappelle, Arrow Zoe Amelia, Adderly Bigelow – Boulder Ensemble Theatre Company: Stephen Weitz Janet Salmons – Barrio É: Tamil Maldonado –; Latino Chamber: Jose D. C.3 Public Inquiry as the Cornerstone

The cultural landscape of Boulder has changed since the Cultural Master Plan of 2005. Among these changes are an unparalleled marketplace of cultural organizations, growth in the number and types of creative sector workers and businesses, and an emphasis on culture in the civic dialog. These emerging conditions convinced staff that it was now imperative to gain a thorough understanding of the new priorities and desires of Boulder residents.

To accomplish this, Cultural Planning Group (CPG) developed a public inquiry system titled “The Culture Kitchen”. In a series of engagements held in person and online from October to December 2014, the staff and consultants gathered public input using the following components:

- A public art event series,
- Stakeholder interviews,
- Lengthy online surveys,
- Brief intercept surveys,
- “The Recipe Box”: an online forum hosted by MindMixer,
- Neighborhood pop-up conversations,
- Volunteer-led conversations in the community,
- Meetings with Boulder High School students,
- A pop-up meeting space at the Boulder farmer’s market,
- Focus group meetings, and
- Summits of cultural organizations.

These events and forums resulted in more than 2,000 interactions with Boulder community members. Information and data gathered during the Cultural Kitchen was compiled and analyzed, along with a series of research projects, and presented back to the community in “The Taste Test”: a series of events held in May of 2015. It is through this outreach that the staff and consultants were able to develop a set of “Community Priorities”: the narrative of our community’s desires for the advancement of art and culture in Boulder.

A summary of findings from the Culture Kitchen can be found in appendix IV.4.

C.4 Conditions of Culture and the Creative Economy in Boulder Today

Boulder finds itself in an advanced position...

...in its creative workforce:

- 9,134 creative professionals live here, or 8.85% of the total population (as compared to an average 5.33% in like cities),
- With concentrations among photographers, writers, musicians, postsecondary teachers, graphic designers, and architects.¹

...in the creative sector of the economy:

- In 2013, the creative industries represented $2.3 Billion in sales.²

...in the marketplace of cultural organizations:

- 137 cultural organizations are headquartered in Boulder,
- The top 50 of which had a direct economic spending of approximately $20 Million.³

...in cultural participation:

Respondents to our survey told us that

- 80% take advantage of our theaters and concert halls,
- 74% are artists as a hobby,
- 65% attend art galleries, exhibitions, or craft shows,
- 61% visit museums,
- And, 30% take classes or workshops.⁴

³ Federal Nonprofit Tax Data 2014 (Citation needed).

⁴ Boulder Community Cultural Plan Survey 2014 – See appendix IV.3

Boulder has work to do...

...in diversity:

- 8% of the city's population identifies as Latino, which is fewer as compared to Latino populations generally
- Including 21% in Colorado and 17% nationally.
- Boulder is 2% Asian, 1% Black, >1% Native American, which also under-represents state and national averages.⁵

...in public spending on the arts:

- The city government spends just over $6 per person on cultural affairs,
- As compared to an average of just over $33 in comparable cities.⁶

...to be a welcoming city for artists:

- The cost of living in Boulder challenging. Particularly in housing, where Boulder is 155% of the national average.⁷
- Meanwhile, the wages of creative professionals is generally below standard livable wages across different family types.⁸
- Boulder residents feel that social offerings and the sense that the community is open and welcoming are areas that need improvement.⁹

D. Community Priorities

The Community Cultural Plan will be successful only through collaboration: success for our culture is the responsibility of all of Boulder. Thus, this document is not merely a municipal government work plan. Rather, we all have a role to play: public and private, non-profit and for-profit, in education, in personal and professional life.

To understand our roles, the priority is to establish the “Community Priorities”. These statements summarize the most common responses in answer to the question “What is your vision for Boulder’s culture and creative economy over the next nine years?” and represent the broader trends that appeared in the data from the Cultural Kitchen, dialog with key stakeholders and industry research.

Support the resiliency and sustainability of cultural organizations to enhance their ability to benefit the community.

Build a city that is a supportive environment for artists and creative professionals, while fostering innovative thinking and leadership among them.

Prioritize the civic dialogue about the ability of culture to positively contribute to the economy, social offerings, the environment, and the authentic expression of diversity.

Develop Boulder’s creative identity in becoming an innovative world leader in cultural matters and project that identity to the region and the world.

Focus on the expression of culture and creativity in the public realm through public art, the urban landscape, culture in the neighborhoods, and serendipitous encounters with the arts.

Amplify the vibrancy of Boulder’s cultural destinations: the lively mix of museums, performance venues, events, districts, studios, maker spaces, and other facilities that make Boulder an enticing place to visit, live, play, and work. Fill in the gaps and address issues of access and affordability.

E. Vision

E.1 (This section will be addressed in a later draft.)

E.2 Vision Elements

In considering the Community Priorities, these three “Vision Elements” summarize the things we must accomplish for success:

Together, we will achieve a high level of Cultural Vitality. A diverse mix of cultural, economic and social activity which improves the life of every person who works, plays, or lives in Boulder.

Together, we will nurture the Creative Identity of Boulder. Every person who visits Boulder counts culture at the top of their list of grand expectations and memories.

Together, we will cultivate a Vibrant Environment. Thoughtfully applied creativity will positively affect the public spaces, mix of destinations, and encounters with culture.

Each vision element is described in detail in appendix IV.8.

It is from the Vision Elements that the municipal government will design “strategies”: tools and capacities of the Office of Arts + Culture to support organizations, businesses, and individuals for achieving the Community Priorities.

E.3 Time Horizon

I. Strategies

Directly derived from the Vision Elements and Community Priorities, below are eight strategies: programmatic tools, tactics, and capacities which the municipal government will provide to the community.

1. Support Our Cultural Organizations
2. Reinvent our Public Art Program
3. Create and Enhance Venues
4. Enhance the Vitality of the Creative Economy
5. Emphasize Culture in Neighborhoods and Communities
6. Support Individual Artists and Creative Professionals
7. Advance Civic Dialogue, Awareness, and Participation
8. Engage Our Youth

Below are summaries of each strategy.

Full operational details of each strategy can be found on page 32.

I.1 Strategy One: Support Our Cultural Organizations

I.1.1 Program Areas:

- A. Cultural Grants
- B. Sponsorships / Partnerships
- C. Leadership Development and Convening

I.1.2 Goal:

Have a substantial and positive effect on the ability of Boulder's many cultural organizations to advance their operational capacity, promote organizational resiliency, and encourage innovation for the benefit of the community.

I.1.3 Community Priority:

Support the resiliency and sustainability of cultural organizations to enhance their ability to benefit the community.

I.1.4 Challenges:

Institutional Support – This plan recommends increased funding for cultural organizations and institutions that are not necessarily owned by the city; yet have the potential to significantly contribute to the Community Priorities. Several nonprofit institutions already receive some level of city funding in the form of annual support. Other organizations have come to rely on small project grants from the city as a supplement to their portfolio of revenue. The results of both these programs have been inconsistent. This Strategy, in calling for the funds to be spent on organizational sustainability, is a new perspective on the structure of this giving. Institutional support will allow organizations to build stability, advance operational capacity, and encourage innovation.

Funding – For the past twenty years, the Office of Arts + Culture, with oversight from the Boulder Arts Commission, has stewarded a grant making capacity which, in 2015, amounts to $225,000. This is less than 1% of the total budgets of Boulder cultural organizations.¹⁰ While there have been projects of notable success funded from these grants, in general the impact is insignificant. The level of funds for grant distribution must increase to have a significant impact towards achieving the goal of this strategy.

Private Philanthropy – A key factor in the sustainability of cultural organizations is private philanthropy, memberships, volunteerism, and participation. The municipal government cannot participate directly in this activity, but there are new and existing organizations in the community that have the potential to galvanize leadership in this area. The Office of Arts + Culture will support leadership in the advocacy for private giving and participation, and invest in a partnership to catalyze the effort.

¹⁰ Federal Nonprofit Tax Data 2014 (Citation needed).

I.1.5 Priority Recommendations:

Funding – Establish a focused, sustainable, and adequate revenue source that increases the Office of Arts + Culture’s annual grant funds from its current level of $225K per year to $1 Million by 2021.

Grants Process – Reorganize the structure and processes of the grants program in a strategic manner in which the grants respond to the Community Priorities and the goal of this strategy. Take into account the needs of long-standing institutions while continuing to invest in new ideas and emerging organizations. Structure the grant-making strategy over the nine years of this plan to recognize the unique needs of:

- Large institutions,
- Mid-sized, Smaller, and emerging organizations,
- Investments in innovation, entrepreneurship and artistic/organizational risk, and
- Building leadership capacity for more effective management.

I.2 Strategy Two: Reinvent our Public Art Program

I.2.1 Program Areas:

- A. Public Art Commissioning
- B. Maintenance and Conservation
- C. Interpretation, Communications, and Legacy Initiatives
- D. Mural Program / Facilitation of Urban Art and Design

I.2.3 Goal:

Many individuals, businesses, organizations, and developers will be encouraged to invest in improvements to public spaces through the addition of meaningful, innovative, and quality works of art. The municipal investment in public art will be a model, using a system of publicly transparent, sustainable, and innovative practices to commission artworks of enduring cultural value.

I.2.4 Community Priority:

Focus on the expression of culture and creativity in the public realm through public art, the urban landscape, culture in the neighborhoods, and serendipitous encounters with the arts.

I.2.5 Challenges:

Sustainable Funding – There is a strong level of community support for increased funding to support arts and culture, including public art.¹¹ Immediate steps have already been taken to launch the public art program; voters approved the Community Culture and Sustainability temporary tax program, part of which will be used for this purpose. However, long term sustainable funding will require further investigation.

I.2.5 Priority Recommendations:

A Sophisticated Program – In considering the full lifecycle of a public art project, from selection to design to the finished display and beyond, the Office of Arts + Culture will build a high-performing public art program that is an industry leader. In terms of process, this involves a thorough updating of practices, among them: a high standard of public inquiry, strategic and thoughtful selection processes, sustainable funding, and carefully executed design review. In addition, the collection itself must meet the highest of standards and represent the most important developments in contemporary practice. This pursuit of quality works of art implies variety and diversity. Not popularity. It is important for the city to be confident in this measure of success; no work of art will be universally loved. The ability to take risks is important to the program. A sophisticated public art collection is also one in which new mediums, narratives, and methods of presenting public art are represented. The public art program will actively seek temporary and permanent public art in bronze and marble, yes. And, also in time-based media, performance, music, interactive projects, design, social practice, conceptual art, web-based art, and all emerging forms of public art.

Sustainable Funding – After the initial launch of the public art program, the Office of Arts + Culture will explore a source and mechanism for permanent public art funding in the 2018 budget.¹² An important consideration will be the ability to create a robust program, with many new commissions every year. Therefore, staff will also research other sources of funding including fees, accommodations tax, and private funding generated by development to supplement or enhance general support for public art. Structure the funding to be sustainable over many years. Public art needs to be considered in terms of decades, well after the time horizon of this plan. This portfolio of funding should not only be secure, but also flexible and at an adequate level to maintain a desirable level of new commissions on a regular basis.

Unified Approach – There have been substantial investments in public art over the years, particularly by the Transportation, Parks, and Parking Services agencies. However, a strategic and consistent process is needed to advance the investments in public art. The Office of Arts + Culture will assume leadership in the public art process while maintaining close collaborations with those agencies that are most affected by the public art program.

I.2.6 Allies:

Boulder County – The State of Colorado – RTD – Federal Government Public Art Program – City of Boulder Transportation – City of Boulder Downtown and University Hill Management/Parking Services – City of Boulder Parks & Recreation – City of Boulder Planning & Sustainability – City of Boulder Facilities Access Maintenance – Civic Area Team – and others

¹² An explanation of options for public art funding appears in appendix IV.5.

Strategy Three: Create and Enhance Venues

I.3.1 Program Areas:

- A. Municipal Venues for the Arts
- B. Advocate among Private Venues
- C. Rental Assistance Grants

I.3.2 Goal:

Improve the resiliency of visual and performing arts organizations, and the experience of their audiences, which are currently challenged by gaps in studio, rehearsal, performance, and exhibition space. Mitigate the barriers to innovation and sustainability that are encountered due to these challenges.

I.3.3 Community Priority:

Amplify the vibrancy of Boulder's cultural destinations: the museums, performance venues, events, districts, studios, maker spaces, and other facilities. Work to fill in the gaps and address issues of access and affordability.

I.3.4 Challenges:

Civic Area Venues – An opportunity exists to explore the mix of current and planned facility projects in the Civic Area for cultural uses. Already, the Main Library, Senior Center, and Boulder Museum of Contemporary Art (BMoCA) can begin to address the gaps in facilities. What is more, the potential for future building projects in the east and west ends of the park will be examined to include significant arts venues. Finally, the outdoor spaces envisioned in the Civic Area plan are opportunities for cultural venues. The Office of Arts + Culture play an advocacy role for cultural programming and facilities in the Civic Area.

Fill In the Gaps – The gap in venues falls across fine art disciplines, and is attributable to issues of availability, affordability, and access. It is recommended that staff fully investigate the feasibility of incorporating rehearsal and small performance spaces into the city's current process of facility assessment. The potential for cultural uses will be considered whenever the city builds or renovates a public facility. Staff will collaborate with Facilities & Asset Management, Planning, Parks & Recreation, and other agencies on this issue.

I.3.5 Priority Recommendations:

A project to build a performing arts venue in the Civic Area has been ongoing for some time. The Boulder Center for the Performing Arts is a group of volunteer advocates that has worked closely with city staff on this project. They have recently demonstrated that their concept for a performing arts venue may indeed fill a significant gap in available facilities. Though there are a number of considerations that many city officials and the public need to keep in mind, the Office of Arts + Culture is in a position to advocate for the specific cultural value that success in this project will bring to the community. Staff will continue to support the investigation of a venue in the Civic Area with the Boulder Center for the Performing Arts organization and other city agencies. Carefully consider not only how to fund and build such a venue, but perhaps more importantly how the programming and management of the facility will best be an enhancement to the mix of cultural organizations in Boulder, and how the sustainable business model will be a consistent benefit to the community.

Be an advocate in the health of Boulder’s portfolio of private for- and non-profit performing and visual arts venues. Convene this group regularly to promote collaboration and alignment of their goals.

I.3.6 Allies:

The Dairy Center for the Arts – Colorado Chautauqua Association – Museum of Boulder – Boulder Museum of Contemporary Art – Studio Arts Boulder – Boulder Center for the Performing Arts Organization – NoBo Arts District Organization – University of Colorado – Naropa University – private non-profit and for-profit performing and visual arts venues – City of Boulder Parks & Recreation – City of Boulder Planning & Sustainability – Civic Area Team – and others

Strategy Four: Enhance the Vitality of the Creative Economy

I.4.1 Program Areas:

- A. Partner with City Agencies for the Creative Sector
- B. Creative Districts
- C. Creative Economy Research and Convening

I.4.2 Goal:

Enhance Boulder's leading position as a home to creative professionals and businesses.

I.4.3 Community Priorities:

Build a city that is a supportive environment for artists and creative professionals, while fostering innovative thinking and leadership among them.

Prioritize the civic dialogue about the ability of culture to positively contribute to the economy, social offerings, the environment, and the authentic expression of diversity.

I.4.4 Priority Recommendations:

Creative District in North Boulder – Support the grass-roots effort that has successfully assembled the energy of neighbors, businesses, artists, and organizations in North Boulder around the creative district. Work with the NoBo Arts District organization for the success of artists: the cornerstone of the district's future.

Creative Economy – There exists an enormous potential to deploy an incentives program specifically designed for creative businesses and entrepreneurs to retain or attract jobs and businesses. This will be best accomplished if the Office of Arts + Culture collaborates closely with the Economic Vitality Office. It is recommended that the two offices co-lead an initiative to investigate the regulatory environment, find efficiencies, market existing incentives, and create new programs that will assist the creative sector.

Taskforce on Workforce and Talent Retention – While Boulder's creative businesses thrive, on the horizon is a significant challenge in hiring and retaining the young, talented people who will sustain the work that they do. To protect Boulder's advanced position among centers for the creative sector, a collaboration must be established between the city, organizations, and businesses to address these issues. The Office of Arts + Culture will convene a task force made up of leaders in these areas to explore solutions for the creative workforce and talent retention.

I.4.5 Allies:

NoBo Arts District Organization – North Boulder community stakeholders – Boulder Chamber of Commerce – Boulder Latino Chamber of Commerce – Boulder Economic Council – University of Colorado – Boulder Valley School District – Growing Up Boulder – City of Boulder Office of Economic Vitality – City of Boulder Planning & Sustainability – City of Boulder Neighborhood Services – and others

I.5

Strategy Five: Strengthen Culture in our Neighborhoods and Communities

I.5.1 Program Areas:

- A. Creative Neighborhoods
- B. Diversity and Inclusion

I.5.2 Goal:

Every resident of Boulder finds ways to creatively impact their neighborhood and social community, with an emphasis on underserved groups, and has easy access to cultural experiences in the places that are most important to their everyday lives.

I.5.3 Community Priorities:

Focus on the expression of culture and creativity in the public realm through public art, the urban landscape, culture in the neighborhoods, and serendipitous encounters with the arts.

Prioritize the civic dialogue about the ability of culture to positively contribute to the economy, social offerings, the environment, and the authentic expression of diversity.

I.5.4 Challenge:

Diversity - In order to authentically represent the needs of all communities in Boulder, the most important thing staff learned from the Culture Kitchen process was just how much remains to be accomplished; nine months of public meetings was simply not enough time to build bridges to every diverse community. In addition, the lack of diversity in Boulder (that is, diversity of all kinds including cultural diversity), is an emerging threat to the economic and social resiliency. The Office of Arts + Culture will embrace very high standards in principles of outreach and communications to diverse groups. It is a priority in the first phase of this plan to build those bridges, engage underserved communities, and associate the efforts of the Office of Arts + Culture with agencies that have been doing well in this effort. If successful, the strategies of this plan will be useful and accessible to ALL of Boulder.

I.5.5 Priority Recommendations:

An opportunity exists to collaborate closely with the City of Boulder Neighborhood Services Office. It is recommended that the Creative Neighborhoods program, and other initiatives in this strategy, employ collaborative leadership with the Neighborhood Services Office.

I.5.6 Allies:

Neighborhood groups and organizations – Intercambio – El Centro de Amistad – Boulder Latino Chamber of Commerce – City of Boulder Department of Human Services – City of Boulder Neighborhood Services Office – City of Boulder Libraries – City of Boulder Parks & Recreation – City of Boulder Open Space – and others

DRAFT

Strategy Six: Support Artists and Creative Professionals

I.6.1 Program Areas:

- A. Support and Recognition for Artists and Creative Professionals
- B. Livability and Affordability
- C. Professional Development Tools

I.6.2 Goal:

Boulder will increasingly attract artists and creative professionals for all it has to offer, not only in beautiful surroundings and quality of life, but also in the ability to thrive in the creative sector.

I.6.3 Community Priority:

Build a city that is a supportive environment for artists and creative professionals, while fostering innovative thinking and leadership among them.

I.6.4 Challenge:

Livability – Without question the challenges of affordability and livability are the most complex issues to be addressed in the Community Cultural Plan. These concerns are a priority among survey respondents; the issue of affordability ranked second among critical issues to resolve.¹³ Addressing these issues implies working with many stakeholders, inside and outside the city government: affordability and access to housing, studio space, display and performance venues, and livability in general are critical to artists who are trying to get a foothold in Boulder’s creative economy.¹⁴ These challenges have the potential to compromise our position as a magnet for attracting creative professionals and artists.

I.6.5 Priority Recommendations:

- The City of Boulder is working with many public partners and private groups to address the issue of affordability and access in residential and commercial markets. The Office of Arts and Culture will join with these groups on finding the means to resolve this challenge for all professions, including artists.
- Establishing or partnering on a fellowship program for artists and creative professionals can provide an impressive return on a modest investment. An initiative to recognize the work of the most innovative and promising talent in our community, and provide them with unencumbered resources to “do what they do best”, will not only be a system of recognition, but will also encourage the brand of Boulder as a great place for creative people to thrive. This may be accomplished as a program of the Office of Arts + Culture, or be incorporated into an existing program such as The Dairy Center Honors.

¹³ and ¹⁴ Boulder Community Cultural Plan Survey 2014 – See appendix IV.4

- Until recently, a collaboration with the Boulder County Arts Alliance for professional development was a popular tool for individual artists and creative professionals to enhance their business skills. This “Business of the Arts” program was ended when funding was cut, but continues to have potential. By the second phase of this plan, the partnership with Boulder County Arts Alliance will be renewed, with an eye on developments that may improve content and format to best serve the creative professionals of Boulder.

I.6.6 Allies:

The NoBo Arts District Organization – Boulder Chamber of Commerce – Boulder Latino Chamber of Commerce – Boulder County Arts Alliance – Boulder County Arts Leadership Forum – University of Colorado – Naropa University – Small Business Development Center – Studio Arts Boulder – Open Arts – Boulder Digital Arts – Boulder Design Works – madelife – Boulder Arts Association – Boulder Metalsmithing Association – The Dairy Center for the Arts – City of Boulder Planning & Sustainability – City of Boulder Office of Economic Vitality – and others

Strategy Seven: Civic Dialogue, Awareness, and Participation

I.7.1 Program Areas:

- A. Promoting the Community Cultural Plan
- B. Facilitate the Civic Dialogue
- C. Develop Boulder's Creative identity
- D. Partner on a Community Cultural Calendar
- E. Participate in Regional and National Leadership

I.7.2 Goal:

Every person in Boulder will understand their role in the culture of the community, feel that access to information about culture is readily at hand, and will feel invited into the conversation.

I.7.3 Community Priorities:

Prioritize the civic dialogue about the ability of culture to positively contribute to the economy, social offerings, the environment, and the authentic expression of diversity.

Develop Boulder's creative identity in becoming an innovative world leader in cultural matters and project that identity to the region and the world.

I.7.4 Challenges

Identity – Boulder has been quietly innovating as a creative center for some time. We are proud of the moments when that innovation is honored on as part of the national story: the founding of Chautauqua, our Beat poets of the 1950s and 60s, the many accomplished musicians that have landed in Boulder. Today, still a home to remarkable artists and cultural leaders, Boulder is on the way to again being recognized for creativity. The work of Naropa University, e-Town, the Colorado Chautauqua Association, Frequent Flyers, the Boulder International Film Festival, the Conference on World Affairs, and others are increasingly recognized in the international conversation about culture. The Office of Arts + Culture will work with the community on how to nurture a creative identity for the city.

Aligned with this effort, work must be done to tell the story of innovations in city government. Some innovations are described in this plan: the focus on cultural organizations, a sophisticated public art program, the creative neighborhoods initiative, and comprehensive research projects are among the unique aspects of this plan that will be a point of pride.

I.7.5 Priority Recommendations:

An initiative to form a regional cultural alliance began with community conversations and a steering committee in 2015. This initiative for collective leadership promises to fill important gaps in the cultural landscape, and can have significant benefits to achieving the vision of the Community Cultural Plan for Boulder. The Office of Arts + Culture will participate in the formative dialog around this issue in representing the interests of Boulder.

Boulder residents are hungry for arts, culture, and the creative economy to be elevated among the most important priorities in the civic conversation. To do this, a profound step will be to the active participation in government by creative professionals and thought leaders in culture. To the degree possible given city rules, the Office of Arts + Culture will encourage these leaders to actively participate in many ways, including the bold step of applying for positions on Boards & Commissions across city agencies.

I.7.5 Allies:

Boulder County Arts Alliance – Boulder Convention and Visitors Bureau – University of Colorado – Naropa University – City of Boulder Communications – City of Boulder Boards & Commissions – and others.

Strategy Eight: Engage our Youth

I.8.1 Program Areas:

- A. Youth Council
- B. Collaboration with BVSD and Education Organizations
- C. Mentoring and Participation

I.8.2 Goal:

At the end of this nine-year plan, the young people who are now studying the creative pursuits will find Boulder the perfect place to grow into cultural leaders.

I.8.3 Community Priority:

Build a city that is a supportive environment for artists and creative professionals, while fostering innovative thinking and leadership among them.

I.8.4 Challenges

Youth are an Underserved Community – In considering the gaps in cultural opportunities faced by underserved communities, youth are often overlooked. While the school districts offer arts programming in the classroom, offerings around the city are lacking. There are many opportunities for our university population; CU and Naropa students are far from bored. However, the perspective of high school youth is that opportunities for social offerings are limited.¹⁵ While some successes by groups like Growing Up Boulder, BMoCA, and others are stand-outs, this programming is not always widely communicated, or of interest to the large numbers of youth. This gap is important not only for the edification of these particular young people, but also has impacts on the creative economy; the youth of today are the cultural leaders a decade from now. And, when asked, many of these youth in high school and college do not see a promising future for creative pursuits in Boulder.

1.8.15 Priority Recommendations:

Youth Council – (This section will be addressed in the final draft.)

¹⁵ See appendix IV.4

I.8.5 Allies:

Growing Up Boulder – Boulder Valley School District – Tara School for the Performing Arts – private schools and homeschooling associations – University of Colorado – Naropa University – Boulder Chamber of Commerce – Boulder Latino Chamber of Commerce – Office of Economic Vitality – Human Services – and others

Guiding Principles

II.1 Stewardship:

The staff members of the Office of Arts + Culture are stewards of the public trust; including public funds, our system of laws and policies, and confidence in local government. Respecting this responsibility is all the more important in the emotional, sometimes contentious, civic dialogue about culture.

- Staff will consider the proper stewardship of the public trust for every decision made to implement the Community Cultural Plan.

II.2 Boulder Arts Commission:

The Boulder Arts Commission is an advisory and decision-making body which also advocates on behalf of the community. Appointed by City Council, the commissioners have the responsibility of a) serving in a jury capacity for the awarding of cultural grants, b) serving as an approval body for the selection process of the public art program, c) serving as advisory for the execution of the Community Cultural Plan, d) serving on several non-governmental boards or committees related to the execution of the Community Cultural Plan, and e) serving as ambassadors to the community. What is more, the members of the BAC are experts in different aspects of culture and creative life and are keenly invested in the success of the city government.

- Staff will utilize the talents, experience, and enthusiasm of the members of the Boulder Arts Commission to the best benefit of the implementation of the Community Cultural Plan.

II.3 Public Inquiry:

Every strategy depends on public inquiry to be successful. This practice works best when staff is diligent in stewarding public dialog, but also thoughtfully designing that dialog to fit the needs of the program. Consideration of access is important; be sure that the program to consult with the community considers accessibility, availability, affordability, acceptability and accommodations. Public art, in particular, requires a careful consideration of community input.

- Staff will thoughtfully design public inquiry tools for each strategy as well as, in some cases, individual programs or projects to ensure that the community is fully invested in the success of the Community Cultural Plan.

II.4 Partnerships and Collaboration:

These strategies will only be successful by collaborating directly with other city agencies, non-profits, businesses, and leaders in the community. Some aspects of the vision are best addressed in the private sector; successful with the city government as an interested party, but not in the lead. And, there are situations where the role of government is to “clear the path”. In all cases, collaboration is critical. Each strategy should be considered with these thoughts in mind: Who is already doing this in the community? Who connects us with the people and organizations the CCP is designed to benefit? Who stands to gain from this course of action?

- In addition to regular consultation and collaboration, staff will make partnerships the standard practice of doing business.

II.5 Professionalism:

Quality of service impacts the public’s expectations about the whole of city government. The ways in which staff conducts business builds trust: good practices for the grants program and public art, designing documents, responsiveness, honesty, the quality of marketing and promotions, even answering the phone.

- Staff will conduct their business with the most professional manner that reflects well on the city government and the high expectations of City of Boulder’s workplace culture.

II.7 Diversity:

Diversity of all kinds is critical to the success of the Community Cultural Plan: for leadership, for public inquiry, and for the results of programming. Diversity is first addressed in terms of dialog. Actively pursue the voices necessary to ensure broad and deep perspectives on all issues. Diversity is secondly a consideration of results. For instance, the collection of public art should include a spectrum of diverse artists: their styles, media, and narratives.

- Staff will actively seek out diverse perspectives, and diverse results, in community dialog, leadership, tactics, and programs.

II.8 City of Boulder Vision and Values:

The implementation of the CCP should be inexorably linked to the City of Boulder's vision and values.

Vision: Service Excellence for an Inspired Future

Values:

- Customer Service - We are dedicated to exceeding the expectations of our community and our co-workers by demonstrating consistent and professional service with a solution-oriented approach.
- Respect - We champion diversity and welcome individual perspectives, backgrounds and opinions. We are open-minded and treat all individuals with respect and dignity.
- Integrity - We are stewards of the public's trust and are committed to service that is transparent and consistent with city regulations and policies. We are honorable, follow through on our commitments and accept responsibility.
- Collaboration - We are committed to organizational success and celebrate our shared dedication to public service. We believe community collaboration and the sum of our individual contributions leads to great results.
- Innovation - We promote a forward-thinking environment that supports creativity, calculated risks and continuous improvement. We embrace change and learn from others in order to deliver leading edge service.

III. Implementation

III.1 Tactics

III.1.1 Consultation with the Community: Task Force Gatherings and Convening

There are not necessarily ready answers for every challenge that appears in the Community Cultural Plan. In those cases where further discussion, research, and evaluation are necessary, the Office of Arts + Culture will convene a task force to continue the conversation. The subjects for specific groups may include diversity, cultural calendars, and workforce / talent retention. In addition, there may be ongoing discussions across city agencies that require the participation of the Office of Arts + Culture. Subjects for these umbrella challenges include affordability, the built environment and development, the regulatory environment, and other issues.

The city is in a position to convene large stakeholder groups around some of the elements of this plan. This should be done when a Community Priority, Vision Element, or Strategy will be primarily accomplished through private leadership (as opposed to those initiatives that are primarily a city government function). These gatherings may include cultural summits, gatherings of venue owners, or creative sector businesses.

(This section will be addressed in the final draft.)

III.1.4 Shared Leadership

(This section will be addressed in the final draft.)

III.2 Detailed Operation of Strategies

This section is intended to provide insight into the major considerations for implementing the Community Cultural Plan, and as a guide for staff to execute their responsibilities. These should be understood as a set of flexible tools. Provided that the strategies are being well executed, and the guiding principles respected, there should be no barrier to staff’s creativity and innovation in the application of these guidelines.

Measures – Within the detailed recommendations are “measures”: high level summary of those aspects of the strategy which are ideal for evaluating success. Posed as questions, the measures are designed to give direction on what investigations need to be considered. The methods and tools for the actual evaluation are described on page 69, under Strategy 7: Advance Civic Dialog, Awareness, and Participation.

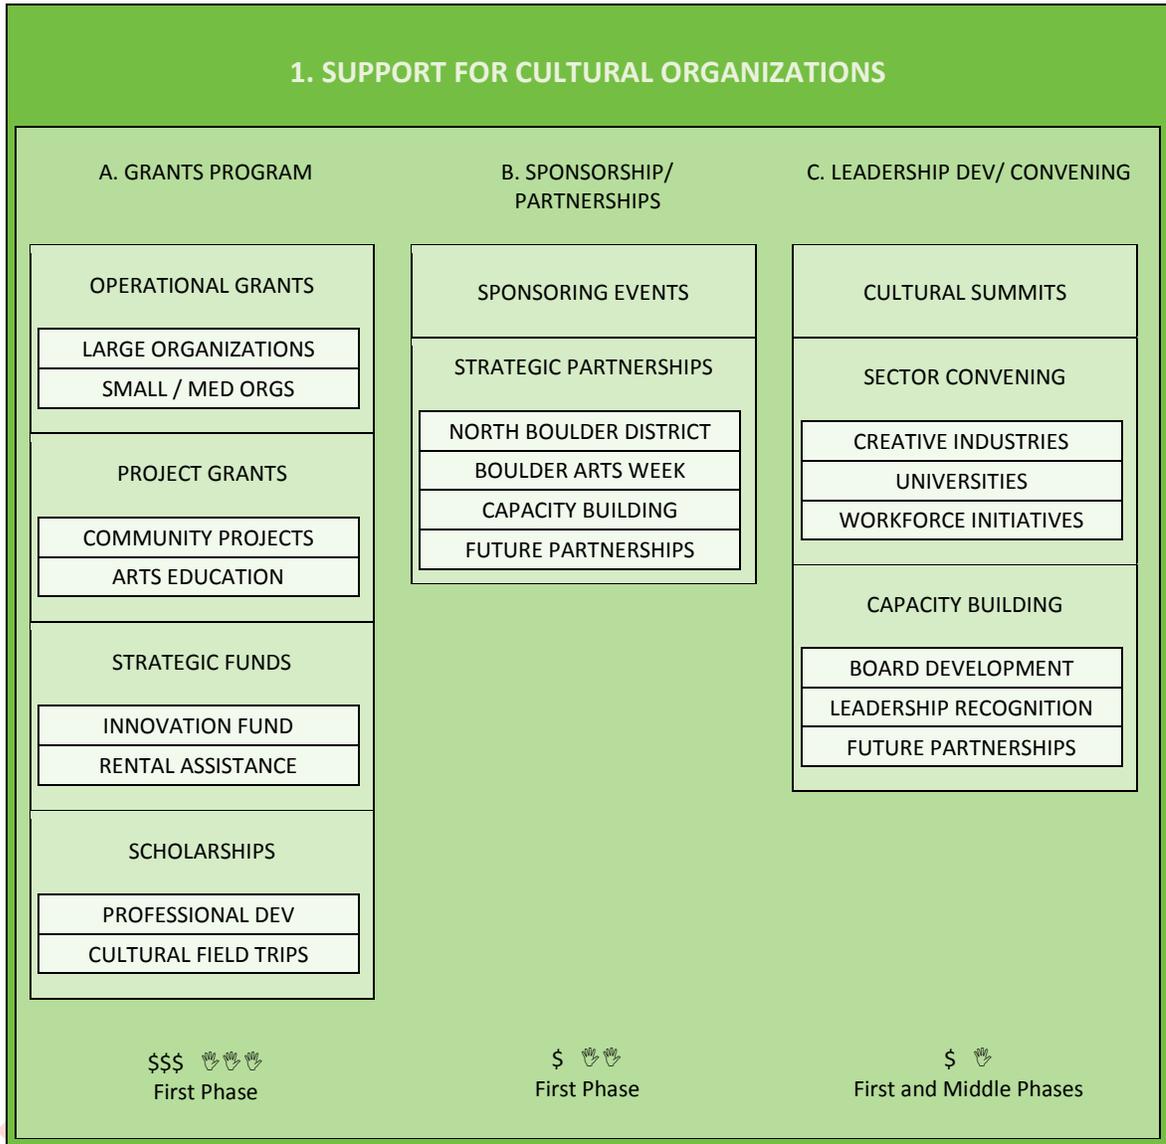

Key to symbols in the strategy operation charts:

$$$: Significant Budget Required
$$: Moderate Budget Required
$: Minor Budget Required

👤👤👤: Significant Staff Time Required

First Phase: 2016 to 2018
Middle Phase: 2019 to 2021
Final Phase: 2022 to 2024

Strategy One – Support for Cultural Organizations, Programmatic Structure:

A. Grants Program

It is important to understand that the grants program includes not only the grants to cultural organizations, but several other programs that appear in different strategies. Thus, all the grants should be assembled as a single program for the purposes of administration, budget, and staffing.

The grants program can be divided in to four categories: operational grants, project grants, funds, and scholarships:

- Operational Grants for Large Organizations
- Operational Grants for Mid-sized and Small Organizations
- Project Grants for Community Events
- Project Grants for Arts Education
- Innovation Fund
- Rental Assistance Fund
- Scholarships for Professional Development / Leadership
- Scholarships for Cultural Field Trips

Because these grants are derived from different places within the Plan, it may be necessary to address the administration and guidelines in context to that individual Strategy. For instance, the Operational Grants for Large Organizations should be designed with the goals and measures of the Support for Cultural Organizations strategy in mind. However, the Scholarships for Cultural Field Trips should be designed to fulfill the Engage Our Youth strategy.

- Operational Grants – To bolster the sustainability of the community’s cultural organizations, a system of operational grants will be the priority. The justification of this system is best summarized by the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies, in their “General Operating Support Fact Sheet”¹⁶. In this document are outlined six “advantages” for operating grants, here modified to suit the circumstances of the Community Cultural Plan:

Operational grants maintain the autonomy of grantees, allowing them to allocate the dollars to their most pressing needs.

Operational grants tend to be more predictable over time, which helps organizations maintain continuity of services to their communities.

Because operational grants are flexible, grantees can use the funds in more opportunistic or entrepreneurial ways than project-restricted funds often allow.

Operational grants come with stringent accountability and management requirements that incentivize and perpetuate good business practices among arts organizations.

¹⁶ State Art Agencies Fact Book, page 1 (National Assembly of State Arts Agencies) – see appendix IV.10

Because the grantee—not the grant maker—ultimately defines the activities for which operational grants are used, this funding mechanism can reduce "mission drift" among grantees and can help to curtail the proliferation of programs designed solely to appeal to funders.

Operational grants strengthen the nonprofit arts infrastructure and deepen working relationships between funders and core grantees.

For each grant cycle, the Office of Arts + Culture will consider these motivations, as well as the practices, experience, and consultation with the Boulder Arts Commission, to design a program that will best serve the goal of this strategy.

The best distribution of funds will be in multiple-year cycles. In order to align with other aspects of the Community Cultural Plan, three year cycles are ideal. However, the city budget process allows for only single-year budget cycles; multiple year commitments are not permitted. A compromise must be struck between the city budget rules and the best interest of the organizations.

- Innovation Fund – Boulder’s cultural organizations are comprised of a talented, thoughtful, and innovative workforce. The great ideas and initiatives they come up with are risks worth taking. However, it is often the case that organizations simply do not have the financial flexibility to take those risks. This understandable reluctance results in a gap in the ability of Boulder’s creative thought leaders to be rewarded for innovative thinking. The Office of Arts + Culture will support the ability of organizations to take those risks through the Innovation Fund. This pool of support will be granted by the Boulder Arts Commission for risk-taking ventures and experiments in management systems, technology, or programming.
- Oversight and Coordination – For the grants program, the role of the Boulder Arts Commission is described by the The City of Boulder Revised Code Title 2 Chapter 3-2-3-2:

To assist in the preparation of applications for grants or other sources of funding for arts programs for the city, and

To administer the city arts grant program and other city arts programs pursuant to any authority provided therefore by ordinance of the council.

Therefore, it is the role of commissioners to i) work with staff to establish the guidelines and process as is described above, ii) conduct a jury process to select grant recipients, and iii) assist grant applicants in understanding the decision-making process. It is important to keep in mind that this role is limited. It is staff’s role to execute the grants program and support the members of the commission in their responsibilities.

It is necessary to revise the guidelines, application process, jury process, measures, grant delivery, and reporting structures every three years in coordination with the transition to a new phase of implementation. Thus, the staff work plans for years

2018, 2021, and 2024 will include a thorough evaluation of the program and a series of workshops with the public, the commissioners, and grant recipients to design any improvements. That action can be followed by a process to refine and approve any changes that need to be made.

Staff will work with applicants to support them on the entire process. Establishing an internal grants management system to better track and assess reach and impact will be critical in the first year.

- Allies – In order to provide fair and transparent execution of this program area, it is important that the Office of Arts + Culture and the Boulder Arts Commission maintain the highest standards regarding ethical rules. This means that, for the grants program, partnerships will be limited. That said, these grants do not exist in isolation. An understanding of the full portfolio of funding that cultural organizations need is important, and a conversation with organizations that work in these areas will be needed to align efforts:

The grants program area will function best when considered in concert with the other grants that organizations rely on. Coordinate with the Boulder County Arts Alliance, the Boulder Convention and Visitors Bureau, Awesome Boulder, the Community Foundation, SCFD, the City of Boulder Human Services Department, the PLAY Foundation, and others.

Earned revenue is vital to Boulder organizations. Staff will consult with them and the organizations that support their funding efforts including the Boulder Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Boulder Chamber of Commerce, the Economic Vitality Office, and others.

A key factor in the sustainability of cultural organizations is private philanthropy, memberships, volunteerism, and participation. The municipal government cannot participate directly in this activity, but there are new and existing organizations in the community that have the potential to galvanize leadership in this area. The Office of Arts + Culture will support leadership in the advocacy for private giving and participation, and invest in a partnership to catalyze the effort.

- Capacities – Funding for the grants program should continue to be integrated with the general fund allocation that is annually appropriated for the Office of Arts + Culture in the near term. An investigation of a separate, sustainable funding source will be conducted by 2021, for implementation in the long term.

Initially, the grant budget should be increased by $225,000 to a total of $450,000 in 2016. This launch of the new grants program will provide a level of funds appropriate to show substantial impact in those grant programs that are a priority to the purposes of this strategy: operational grants and the innovation fund. In subsequent years, the amount of funding should be further increased: $800,000 by the end of the first phase and $1 Million by the end of the middle phase. This amount will be considered full implementation. However, over the course of the final phase it is important that staff be flexible and attentive to changing needs and inflation that may affect the exact amount of this allocation.

Staff needs should be carefully evaluated given the recommendation that funding increase over time. There may be a need to increase staff in the Middle and Final Phases to accommodate the increased demands for process and evaluation.

B. Sponsorships / Partnerships

There will often be opportunities that arise which are not appropriate for the grants program. When an event, organization, business, or individual can collaborate with the Office of Arts + Culture to achieve the goals of this plan, but is not a good fit to the grants program, staff will have a process and budget available to offer sponsorships or partnerships.

- Sponsorships – Opportunities often come up for great things to happen for Boulder. The Office of Arts + Culture will take advantage of these opportunities, and have the funding and collaborative capacity to follow through and support the organizations that bring these important events, exhibitions, performances, products, initiatives, and support programs to the community.

The process for staff to review proposals for sponsorship must be thoughtfully designed. It is of primary importance that, in considering any proposal, staff first considers if the proposal might not be a better fit for the grants program; the stewardship by the Boulder Arts Commission should be the default for any funding. Only when it is determined that the proposal does not fit into the grants program should staff consider it.

- Partnerships – There are already many partnerships that exist between the Office of Arts + Culture and community organizations. Others are emerging. Below are a few of the most immediate opportunities:

Boulder Arts Week – This yearly event encourages cultural tourism, develops audiences, and galvanizes the community conversation about the arts. Boulder Arts Week is in a position to positively affect the success of the community priorities of the Community Cultural Plan in significant ways. The Office of Arts + Culture will identify a budget to partner on Boulder Arts Week. This relationship will be established with the purpose of developing the sustainability and effectiveness of Boulder Arts Week over the long term. Each transitional year should be an opportunity to reevaluate the partnership.

Creative District in North Boulder – A grass-roots effort for place-making in North Boulder was founded out of the concentration of artists in the district, and has galvanized a community effort to focus on the arts as an anchor to the area. A partnership with the NoBo Arts District organization, convening of all interested stakeholders, and municipal district designation, will be the first steps in a formal relationship designed as the cornerstone of successful operation of a flourishing creative district.¹⁷

Private Philanthropy – A key factor in the sustainability of cultural organizations is private philanthropy and participation. Through the research and engagement for the Community Cultural Plan, it was discovered that leadership and advocacy around private philanthropy for the arts are needed in Boulder. However, it is not best for the city government to take on this role. The Office of Arts + Culture will participate in convening groups and individuals aligned with this goal, and identify leadership in the community, either from an existing organization or from a new organization, to partner on filling this need.

Innovation and Excellence in the Arts – Boulder has an international reputation for innovation and excellence in science and technology, food systems, healthy living, and social services. One component of these accomplishments is that, for all these issues, the local conversation about innovation and excellence is vigorous. In considering the arts, much is in place: Boulder is home to many important thought leaders, there is a profound culture of participation, and the universities continue their remarkable work in contemporary practice. Yet, there are specific barriers that have prevented creative leaders from holding that conversation which other sectors enjoy; these barriers include a lack of diversity, challenges to collaboration, and a gap in convening. The Office of Arts + Culture will organize a task force to find the right forums and fill gaps to catalyze that community conversation around innovation and excellence in the arts.

Professional Development for Artists and Creative Professionals – For Boulder to be a good home for artists and creative professionals, there must be opportunities for them to learn the business skills that will compliment their artistic talents. The Boulder County Arts Alliance and the Office of Arts + Culture collaboration titled “Business of the Arts” will be renewed and enhanced. Other partnerships with organizations that offer programs for creative professionals will also be pursued.¹⁸

Plan for Future Partnerships – On transitional years, evaluate the current portfolio of partners and look to expand the program as new opportunities arise.

- Oversight and Coordination – Staff should regularly seek consultation and advice from the Boulder Arts Commission. However, it is important to keep in mind that this is not a grants program. In fact, there is a danger of confusion between sponsorships or partnerships and cultural grants. Thus, a clear process for staff to receive, process, approve, and administer proposals for sponsorship or partnership will be established.

- Capacities – Though time is needed to ramp up to full capacity, a healthy program in Boulder will require approximately $120,000 for sponsorships and partnerships. In transitional years, conduct an investigation of the performance of the program and adjust the funding accordingly.

C. Leadership Development and Convening

- Cultural Summits – During the Culture Kitchen the community of non-profit organizations met in a series of “Cultural Summits”. In those gatherings, the cultural leaders expressed a desire for regular convening. This is reinforced by the data: Boulder is home to a large number of non-profits in the arts, and they have a significant economic impact. It is recommended that the Office of Arts + Culture hosts a regular series of events that brings together the staff and boards of Boulder’s cultural non-profit community. Rather than serving as a strict platform for municipal issues, these events should be viewed as a forum: programmed from among the participants to address their desires and concerns. This is also an opportunity to leverage evaluations and civic dialog initiatives.
- Sector Convening – In many cases the members of the creative sector in Boulder are already gathering in formal and informal settings. Professionals in advertising, design, digital technology, and other sectors have created a culture of conversation in these convening moments. In other cases gaps exist. The music industry, for instance, is a healthy component of Boulder’s creative economy that has yet to find the right forum to get together. The Office of Arts + Culture will be a facilitator of these gatherings; supporting those that already exist and encouraging groups to fill the gaps.
- Capacity Building – The Office of Arts + Culture will find allies among private organizations to achieve common goals in leadership development. There are many groups in the city, county, and state that offer programs in professional development and capacity building. Connecting Boulder non-profit leaders and workers with these resources will accomplish many goals and community priorities. It is recommended that the Office of Arts + Culture actively partner with organizations that offer services and support to cultural non-profits. This initiative overlaps with professional development tools that the Office of Arts + Culture will be providing to individual artists and creative professionals.¹⁹ And, the programs should be considered useful for organizational capacity as well.²⁰

²⁰ See page 65.

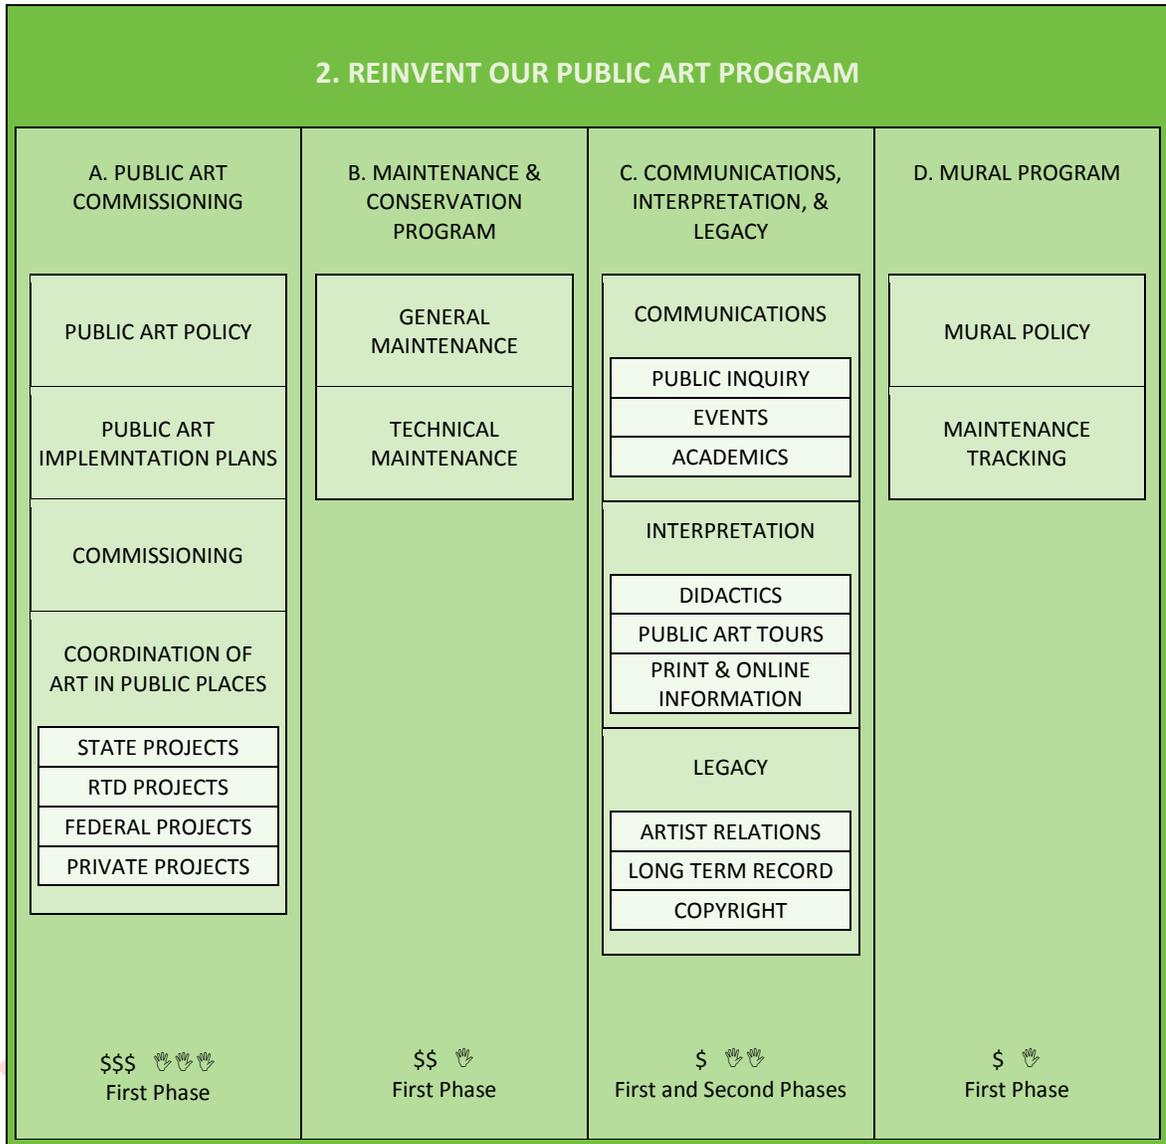

- Oversight and Coordination – More so than in other strategies, the relationship between the staff person coordinating this program area and the leaders of cultural organization should be strong. A single point of contact on leadership development and convening initiatives is the goal.

Measures – Success in Strategy One will be measured against the strategic goal: Have a substantial and positive effect on the ability of Boulder’s many cultural organizations to advance their operational capacity, promote organizational resiliency, and encourage innovation for the benefit of the community.

- As businesses, how healthy are Boulder’s cultural organizations?
- What outreach is being conducting to encourage impact and participation of local and tourism audiences? How effective is this effort?
- What outreach are the organizations conducting to underserved populations? How effective is this effort?
- What is the opinion of the community about Boulder’s cultural organizations?
- What economic impact, including workforce and cultural tourism, are the organizations providing?

DRAFT

Strategy Two – Reinvent our Public Art Program, Programmatic Structure:

A. Public Art Commissioning

- Public Art Policy – The drafting and maintenance of a functional policy will govern how public funds are stewarded, how the selection process is administered, steps for approval, procedures regarding donated or loaned artwork, and commitments to maintenance and other legacy issues. This document has a long time-horizon, and must be conceived with future generations in mind. Thus, it must be carefully written to be a strong tool. However, it must also be a flexible instrument, providing staff the right amount of leverage to ensure that individual projects are successful. This will best be done with thorough research into model programs and consultation with experts in public art at the drafting phase.
- Public Art Implementation Plans – Known in many communities as Public Art Master Plans, these Implementation Plans will govern the use of public art funds with specificity: the sites, selection processes, funding levels, schedules, and the detailed goals for each project. It is easy to fall into the trap of writing these implementation plans to serve the staff in making their job easy. Be sure that the perspective is maintained: the goal of Public Art Implementation Plans is to properly steward the public trust and complete successful projects for the community.

The Implementation Plans should be drafted in transitional years of the Community Cultural Plan. However, in certain circumstances, specific projects or series may be best served with special documents. This is certainly true for the Civic Area.

- Commissioning – In addition to the above, a few considerations are critical when designing a program for the commissioning of public art:

The scale of projects must be considered carefully. It is easy to fall victim to a desire to spread the commissions out among many artists in the interest of broadcasting as much of the money as possible. However, this is likely to diminish the quality and impact of individual commissions as well as of the collection as a whole. Balance the scale of commissions, keeping in mind the goal of this strategy and the smart investment of public funds in these assets.

Great public art programs are a balance between the process and the results. Boulder must have a sophisticated program that addresses both. While it may be easy to say that one compromises the other, for instance that a great process means one must be willing to concede the quality of the completed artwork, do not fall into that trap. Every public art project in Boulder will have a great process and a guarantee a great product, or it will not proceed.

Join in the regional and national conversation about the public art process. The collaborative spirit amongst public art administrators, especially in Colorado with its numerous municipal programs, is a source for innovation and a sounding board for practices. The conversation is important, and will be a benefit of the work of staff

Establish a high standard of public inquiry. Though it is a guiding principal for all programs, in the case of Public Art there is a heightened need for robust and well communicated interactions. Public inquiry must be viewed as a tool for the selection panel members to learn more about the sentiment of residents, and to elevate the civic dialog about a specific project. It is important for staff to avoid the slippery slope of the process becoming a public vote on art contracts. Rather, the public inquiry should inform a sophisticated and careful selection panel process (instead of rendering the selection panel useless). Finally, leverage the public inquiry process to build good will in the community. Residents who participate, even if they do not particularly like the artwork, will feel invested in the process and be advocates for the future of public art in Boulder.

Maintain a consistent commissioning schedule. The current interest in reinventing public art in Boulder reflects a desire for a level of vibrancy in the built environment. Therefore, a high frequency of installations is an expectation of the public. Consider all aspects of the Implementation Plans, and especially the schedules and funding levels, to ensure that this can be achieved.

Cultivate a diversity of artists and arts practices. The value of the collection to residents is connected to the variety of experiences they find. The public art program will actively seek to commission a wide variety of the most innovative approaches to contemporary practice in the arts. People of many different backgrounds should be represented, and the variety of stories the art tells should be broad. Be open to new media and forms of expression that are not typically thought of for public art: digital media, performance, music, web-based art, and social interventions should be in the mix. Temporary art should be deployed when possible; this is particularly useful in the ability of temporary commissions to allow for experimentation and risk. This pursuit of variety and diversity is about quality, not popularity. It is important for the city to be confident in this measure of success; no work of art will be universally loved.

Keep in mind the ultimate purpose of any municipal public art program: to commission works of enduring value.

- Coordination of Art in Public Places – A municipal public art program is but one aspect of a city’s portfolio of art in public places. Private commissions of sculpture can be sited for public display; hospitals and schools often hire artists; cultural organizations should be encouraged to curate artworks for the community; other agencies such as the Regional Transportation District, the universities, the State of Colorado, and the federal government will commission public art. It is recommended that staff stay highly active in tracking and, to the degree possible, providing leadership to ensure that these variety of projects are encouraged and coordinated strategically.

In addition, there is great value in artists and creative members of the community to be encouraged to express themselves through impacting the urban space. The Pearl Street Mall, and its management company Downtown Boulder Inc., have proven the value of this exercise by allowing busking on the Pearl Street Mall without a permit. This open access to creative expression has positively impacted the atmosphere of that retail district. Yet, the public feels that this sense of openness is missing from the rest of Boulder²¹: we are in need of the places and situations for people to chalk the sidewalk, sing or play music, dance or hold flash-mobs. The Office of Arts + Culture will work with city agencies to provide these forums and clear the hurdles for creativity in the public realm. Keeping in mind the value of the existing rules and the needs of public safety, the examination of the regulatory environment is a key first step. Do the rules have unintended consequences that stifle the community voice? A next step is to provide actual places, like the Pearl Street Mall, where creativity is encouraged. The Civic Area has much potential for this type of activity.

- Oversight and Coordination – The public art policy must enshrine the approval process as described above. The role of the Boulder Arts Commission as a significant approval body must not be underestimated. The commissioners, serving as they will on a variety of selection panels and given their responsibilities to the process, have a special role to play. They need to have a profound knowledge of the collection, the public art implementation plans, and what new commissions might mean to the city as a whole. This umbrella knowledge must then be brought to each selection panel by the commissioner representative. To do this, the commissioners will need special opportunities for training and facilitated conversations so that they are comfortable with this role.

Coordination with a variety of City of Boulder agencies will be critical. It is important to remember that the Transportation Division, Parks and Recreation Department, and Downtown and University Hill Management / Parking Services Department have all done significant work in building the existing collection over the decades. These agencies will be key in executing the new public art strategy. It should be the practice of the public art staff person to consult with these internal partners early in the process, include them in decision making, and ensure that their needs and suggestions are thoughtfully considered.

- Capacities – In the First Phase, a fund will be established that can be easily mobilized and serves to kick-start the public art program. The funds identified for public art in the Culture and Safety Tax, passed by voters in 2014, is ideal for this purpose. Then, a full study and plan will be conducted to establishing a sustainable source of funding. This will be best accomplished with a “percent-for-art” ordinance.²² This study will be conducted in 2017, for implementation the following year.

²¹ Soul of the Community Study (Knight Foundation, 2010) – See appendix IV.7.

²² For more information, see appendix IV.5.

Once established, it is estimated that a 1% of capital improvement projects (should that be the method enacted,) could generate as much as $300,000 per year. Given the need for a robust program with a high frequency of installations, it is likely that this amount of money is not enough to successfully meet the goals of this program. Therefore, it will be necessary to supplement a percent-for-art funding structure with other sources. Investigate alternative funding sources such as dedicated tax or fee programs or mandates on private development.

B. Maintenance and Conservation Program

The Office of Arts + Culture will coordinate a program of asset management for the public art collection. Clear roles will be established on who is responsible for regular maintenance as well as conservation or repair of works of art. For instance, many cities have a policy to ensure that the agency responsible for the site is also responsible for regular maintenance for the art at that site, while special repair projects are a shared responsibility. A condition inventory of the public art collection should be conducted by the Office of Arts + Culture regularly, and staff should assist the parties responsible for regular maintenance to track activity. The neglect of public artwork reflects poorly on a community; it must be a directive of the program to efficiently and consistently maintain the collection.

Consider the following when designing the maintenance program:

A frequent challenge to the maintenance of public art begins before the artwork is even installed. A thorough understanding of the artist's intent of narrative and materials is important to ensuring that maintenance and conservation work is done properly. Include a requirement in each public art commission to capture the artists intentions.

Artists are not always the best experts to know how to maintain their own artwork. Contract with conservation and technical experts to produce maintenance and conservation recommendations for each work of art.

More so than in other program areas and strategies, the application of best practices in public art maintenance and conservation are technically complex. It will require diligence and consistency to make sure this work is being done properly. Ensure staff has a thorough and careful understanding of these practices. In addition, Boulder is in a position to lead and innovate in maintenance and conservation. Participate in the national dialog. Also, it will be a great benefit to the program if staff creates a relationship with the programs at the University of Colorado and their programs that overlap the needs of the collection.

C. Communications, Interpretation, and Legacy Projects

- Communications – There are two needs in communicating about public art projects: a) promoting applications to commissions and b) public awareness about the process and collection. The format and media for these communications must be thoughtfully considered. In the case of promoting applications, it is critical to the process that broad and competitive participation be encouraged. The story that emerges from these different exchanges is important to consider; a personality that reflects the sophistication of Boulder’s public art program must be fostered among artists, other arts professionals, and the residents of Boulder.
- Interpretation – The selection is complete, the artwork installed, and the ribbon cut. After this initial phase is complete, the artwork now has a life within the larger collection of public art. This long-term relationship between the artwork, the collection, and the public is important and will not be neglected. The Office of Arts + Culture will create programs to help the public understand the collection. This can take the form of plaques, interpretive panels, guided tours, websites, audio, video and interactive assets. Staff will also consider how social media and crowd sourcing can influence the interpretation of a work of art; perhaps there is a viral campaign or photo opportunity that can be encouraged around a particular artwork or site. It is important to keep in mind that the opinions and conversations about the existing collection has a lasting impact on the public’s expectations about public art spending and their appetite for new commissions.
- Legacy Projects – The Office of Arts + Culture will maintain strong and mutually collaborative relationships with artists who complete public commissions. This is made necessary by ongoing issues of maintenance and copyright. It is also a desirable act for the health of the program. Boulder’s public artists should be considered a group of alumni. Staff will keep track of their careers and celebrate their accomplishments. The artists will get regular notes from staff on the status of their artwork and any press or community conversation their work produces. Doing this is not mere good will; the continuing relationship with these artists is an asset to create a strong brand around the public art program. Staff will be able to tell great stories about the work that Boulder’s alumni artists are doing around the world, and the artists themselves will carry forward the good message about Boulder’s program to their international network.

D. Mural Program

Currently, the owners and tenants of private buildings who wish to commission publicly visible murals are asked to acquire municipal review through the Sign Code²³ and the City of Boulder Design Review Committee. Though these procedural entities do provide some public deliberation on issues of the built environment and visual questions, they are not equipped to provide expertise or guidance regarding art in public places.

²³ City of Boulder Revised Code Chapter 9-9-21 – See appendix IV.11

In order to resolve these gaps, the Office of Arts + Culture will develop a policy for publicly accessible murals. The Boulder Arts Commission will play a role in the new review process, in addition to coordination with effected government agencies and their Boards & Commissions. In addition to an approval process, the policy should also contain standards for how the murals are maintained, address issues of ownership, and plan for the inevitable end of display.

Several considerations are key for designing the program:

Use caution in judging the aesthetic choices of private individuals. It should not be the role of the Boulder Arts Commission to be the aesthetic court of Boulder. At the same time, some evaluation of the quality and imagery must be established, as these works will be visible to the general public. Clear and commonly accepted guidelines will be helpful, as will robust communications to solicit public input.

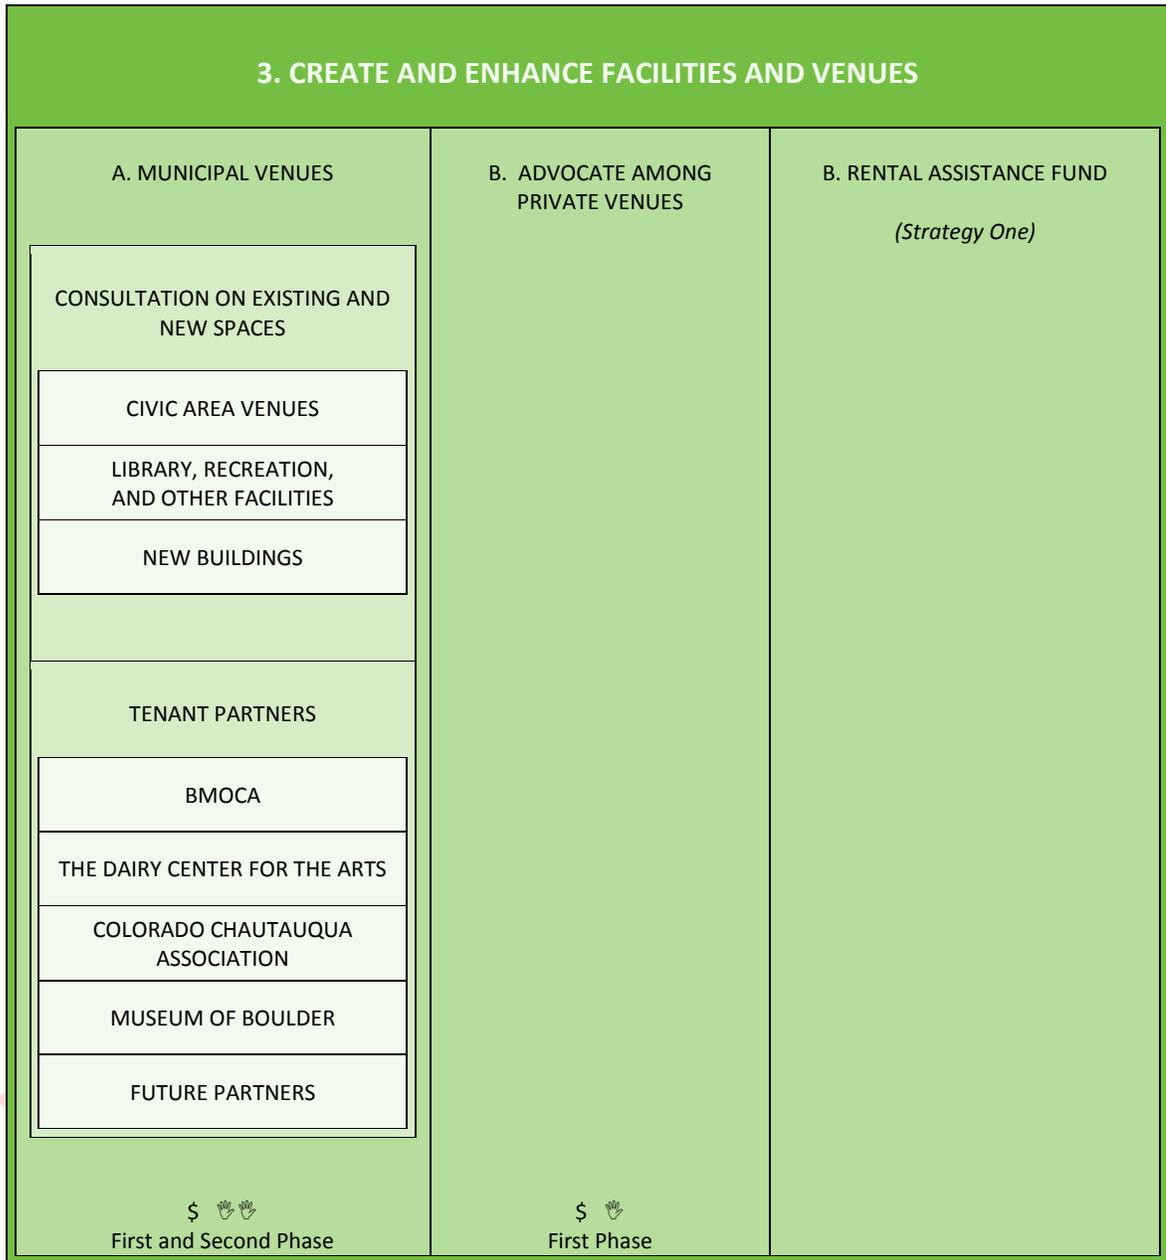

The ultimate purpose of this program area is to encourage more art in public places. Construct the rules, procedures, and evaluation criteria with this in mind.

- Oversight and Coordination – The mural policy will require that private organizations wishing to commission a mural on their property first apply to the Boulder Arts Commission. The role of the commissioners’ review will be to determine if the mural qualifies as a “work of art”, or if it is a “sign or advertisement”. Criteria should be established to codify this distinction. Those determined to be works of art are then subject to a distinct set of performance standards. Those determined to be a sign or advertisement would go on to be reviewed through the standard sign code and design review processes.

Measures – Success in Strategy Two will be measured against the strategic goal: Many individuals, businesses, governments, organizations, and developers will be encouraged to invest in improvements to public spaces through the addition of meaningful, innovative, and quality works of art. The municipal investment in public art will be a model, using a system of publicly transparent, sustainable, and innovative practices to robustly commission artworks of enduring cultural value.

- In what ways, and to what degree, does the public art installed in the city impact the community? What is the impact of adding art to public spaces on issues of sustainability, livability, public health, and resilience? How does the commissioning of public art add value to the goals of other municipal priorities?
- How do the funds for commissioning art get spent? What is the direct economic impact of spending on public art?
- How is public art, both in process and when installed, perceived in the community? What is the perception of Boulder’s program outside of Boulder: among visitors, the media, and across the country?
- In what ways does public art play a role in the business of being an artist in Boulder?

Strategy Three – Create and Enhance Facilities and Venues, Programmatic Structure:

A. Municipal Venues for the Arts

- Consultation on Existing and New Spaces – Currently, opportunities exist in facilities operated by the Library, Parks & Recreation, and other departments, to take advantage of venues for cultural uses. This is true only when that can align with those departments’ plans and missions. Yet, the potential of using city facilities for filling in gaps in access, availability, and affordability of venues may have enormous benefits. The Office of Arts + Culture needs the leadership of other city agencies in accomplishing this goal. Staff will take advantage of the expertise and passion these agencies have for improving Boulder to advocate for cultural uses in existing and planned municipal facilities.

A priority in this program area will be to build or improve venues in the Civic Area for visual and performing arts. The 2012 Civic Area Vision Plan²⁴ articulates a community desire for lively arts experiences. Given this direction, the existing assets of the Library, BMoCA, the Farmer’s Market, and a variety of festivals and events should be enhanced. New opportunities are emerging: BMoCA is considering expansion, there are discussions about a possible reuse of the Municipal Center, the band shell and other spaces may be redesigned for new uses, an “arts campus” is proposed by the Boulder Arts Commission, and the Boulder Performing Arts Center group is proposing new facilities in the Civic Area.

- Tenant Partners – It is important to continue the successful relationships the city has been developing for years in providing great venues for performing arts, visual arts, heritage and public culture with their cultural tenants. BMoCA, Chautauqua, and the Dairy Center for the Arts are all private organizations that occupy city-owned facilities. In addition, the Museum of Boulder has partnered with the city to create a private venue that is due to open in 2016 and Studio Arts operates The Pottery Lab. Continue to partner with these organizations and keep the door open to future opportunities for organizations that can best use city property for the benefit of the community.
- Oversight and Coordination – The partnerships with tenant organizations should be a cross-agency activity, connected with city leadership and a variety of Boards & Commissions.

B. Advocate among Private Venues

Staff will play a leadership role in advocating for solutions to the challenges of affordability, availability, and access among private venues. This can be done in several ways: by leveraging the ongoing research that derives from this Plan, by convening the community of venue owners to discuss issues, or by partnering with other community leaders and organizations that are in a position to improve this situation.

²⁴ See appendix IV.11.

C. Rental Assistance Fund

The Office of Arts + Culture will provide a flexible fund to assist organizations and individuals in the community to meet needs for renting studio, exhibition, and performance space. There are many challenges that need to be carefully considered in structuring a rental assistance fund:

The awards will be decided based on need and in an objective manner. This is not a tool for evaluating the quality or popularity of a particular performance or exhibition. Though a first-come-first-served system is probably unworkable, some measure of objectivity should be integral to distributing funds.

The funding should not be for entire rental fees, but instead should be either a partial calculated amount or a matching fund.

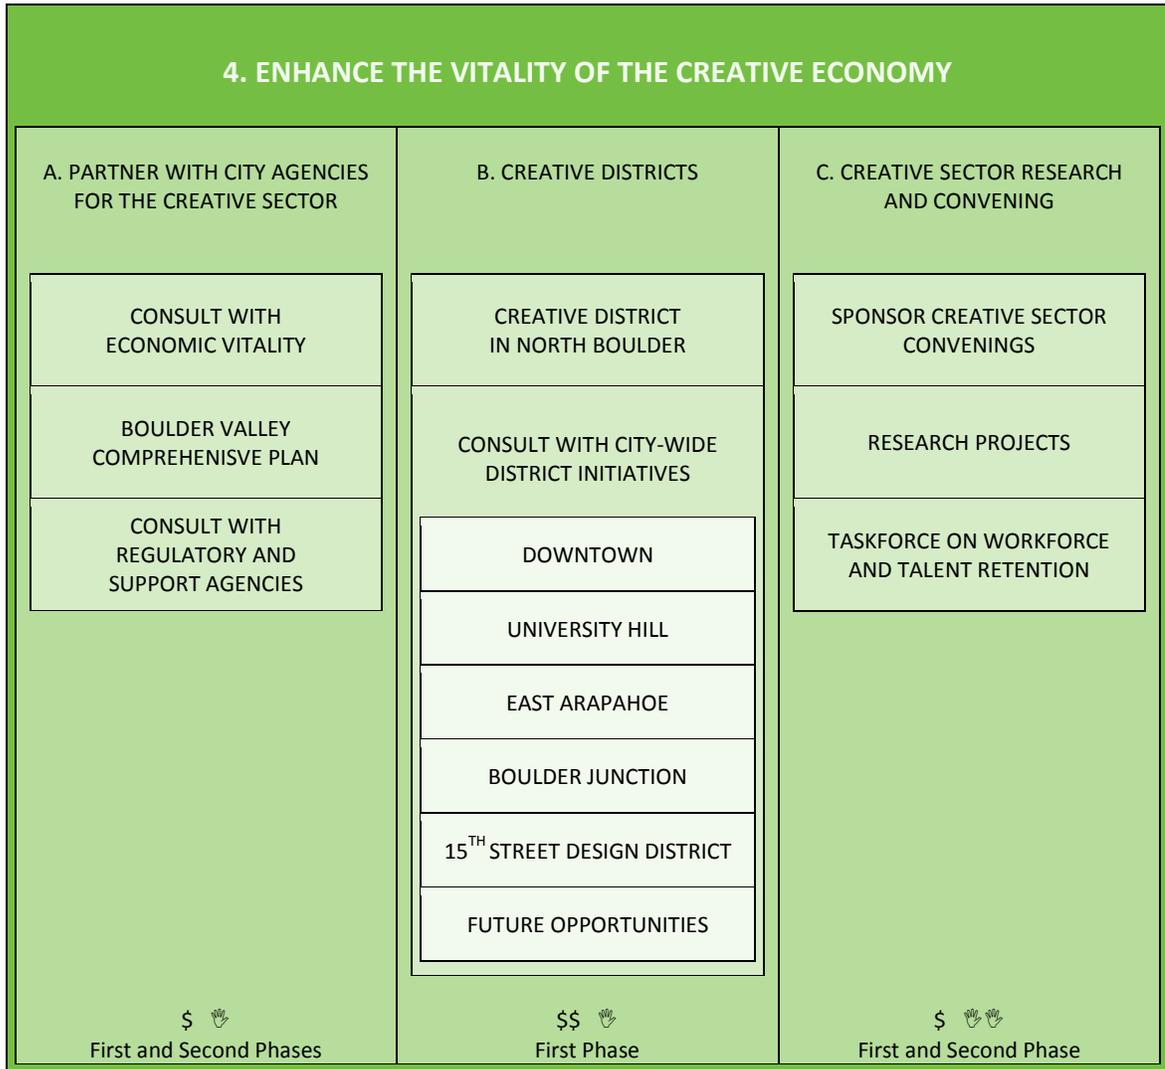

The awards should be for single events, rather than drifting in purpose to become ongoing support for the long term use of facilities.

The structure and function of the grants should be considered in the spirit of their purpose: to bridge a gap that exists in the ability of some groups to afford renting venues. The market demands a certain rent level that some organizations and individuals from time to time may not be able to meet. At the same time there are many organizations that can afford the going rates. That ability to succeed in Boulder's existing market is an important goal for all cultural groups. Ensure that this fund is used to assist applicants to get to that place of resiliency, rather than becoming a crutch that prevents organizations from improving.

Measures – Success in Strategy Three will be measured against the strategic goal: Improve the resiliency of visual and performing arts organizations and individuals, and the experience of their audiences, which are currently challenged by gaps in venues. Mitigate the barriers to innovation and sustainability that are encountered due to affordability of space.

- What are the mix of venues; the gaps and needs? How are they serving arts presenters? How are the issues of location, use, scale, affordability, availability, and equity changing over time?
- What are the economic impacts of the market for studio, rehearsal, performance, and exhibition space? How is the city's contributions, directly and indirectly affecting the market for venues?

Strategy Four – Enhance the Vitality of the Creative Economy, Programmatic Structure:

A. Partner with City Agencies for the Creative Sector

- Consult with Economic Vitality – The Office of Economic Vitality currently offers programs and incentives, and partners with community groups to provide professional development tools to business owners. The goal of these programs is to enhance the ability of businesses to succeed in Boulder’s economic climate and keep jobs in Boulder.²⁵ The Office of Arts + Culture will work with the Office of Economic Vitality to communicate opportunities to leaders in the creative sector. Also, staff will investigate new opportunities that may position Economic Vitality to fully support the creative sector as an important part of the mix of businesses in Boulder. For example, programs may include sector-specific incentives, districts to incentivize creative businesses, revolving loan programs, or other initiatives.
- Boulder Valley Comprehensive Plan – Staff will work with the team that is developing the 2015 revisions to the Boulder Valley Comprehensive Plan to ensure that the Community Priorities are considered in the revisions. Prepare to do the same for the 2020 revisions process.²⁶
- Consult with Regulatory and Support Agencies – The regulatory environment in Boulder has a mixed record when it comes to encouraging creative businesses. For instance, the diminishing inventory of studio space for visual artists can be in part linked to the decreasing availability of space in the few warehouse or light industrial areas that zoning allows. Open conversations with other city agencies responsible for regulations and support programs. The goal of these conversations is to contribute to a healthy regulatory environment for the retention and attraction of creative sector businesses and workers.

B. Creative Districts

The origins of arts, gallery, or creative districts are generally organic, springing from leadership among the businesses and artists they serve. In recent years, the districting concept has been formalized; a process that has in large part been championed by Colorado Creative Industries (CCI), the State arts agency. Useful to the Community Cultural Plan is CCI’s “purposes”²⁷ of a creative district, here modified for circumstances in Boulder:

Creative Districts are:

- Attracting artists and creative entrepreneurs to a community, infusing new energy and innovation, which in turn will enhance the economic and civic capital of the community;

²⁵ See appendix IV.11

²⁶ See appendix IV.11

²⁷ <http://www.coloradocreativeindustries.org/communities/colorado-creative-districts/about-creative-districts> (State of Colorado, 9/1/2015) – See appendix IV.11

- Creating hubs of economic activity, thereby enhancing the area as an appealing place to live, visit and conduct business, as well as create new economic activity;
- Attracting visitors;
- Revitalizing and beautifying communities;
- Providing a focal point for celebrating and strengthening a community's unique identity;
- Showcasing cultural and artistic organizations, events and amenities;
- Contributing to the development of healthy communities; and
- Improving Boulder's quality of life.

For these reasons, it is vital that the Office of Arts + Culture work with city agencies to build creative districts. Also consider creative components in other types of districts. From this perspective, districts can be defined as a relationship between the city, businesses, and neighborhoods to achieve the mutual benefits listed above.

- Creative District in North Boulder – The creative district in North Boulder is a grass-roots effort in which the critical concentration of artists in the district have galvanized a community effort to focus on the arts as an anchor to business and place-making. The primary organization that has played a leadership role in this effort is the NoBo Arts District group. Other organizations, including the Boulder Metalsmithing Guild, First Congregational Church of Boulder, and Artmatrix, are active in programming. A partnership with the NoBo Arts District group, and convening of all organizations and interested stakeholders, should be the first step in a formal relationship designed as a cornerstone of the successful operation of a flourishing creative district. The structure and governance of this relationship should be described in a separate strategic document, one that provides official municipal designation of the district. However, the conversation and collaboration can begin immediately. The ultimate goal is to create the conditions by which the city and partners can align their efforts around the success of the business of fine art. This can be done through efforts in the built environment, programming, the regulatory environment, economic tools, shared promotional marketing, and place making initiatives.

- Consult with City-wide District Initiatives – There are many districts existing and planned in Boulder. They have a variety of functions and structures. Some of them have the promise of a creative component:

Downtown Boulder, governed by Downtown Boulder Inc., has long been participating in both cultural programming and as a host for creative businesses. It is also the primary landing site for tourists as they begin to explore Boulder. Support their activities and encourage the health of the cultural components of their strategic planning.

A part of the Downtown service area is East Pearl Street. These few blocks of Pearl Street between 15th and 28th Street is an area that has a distinct personality as home to several galleries, dance studios, and other creative businesses. Explore this concentration and the potential for a unique personality to emerge there.

University Hill, governed by several municipal and private interest groups, is a center for entertainment and culture focused on both the University students and neighbors. The potential for taking advantage of a culture of innovation and a history of music venues in this district is compelling.

East Arapahoe has been proposed as a “eco district” due to the concentration of reuse, recycling, and green industry businesses that have established themselves there. The recently founded Art Parts provides recovered materials specifically for resale to artists. In addition, this area is being explored for redevelopment as part of a transportation corridor. The community has expressed interest in a minor cultural hub centered around the Boulder Dinner Theater in that plan. Finally, the presence of part of Naropa University’s campus in this area adds to the potential of creative assets in East Arapahoe.

Boulder Junction is a district governed by two municipal commissions. Already a site for some of Boulder’s most recent works of public art, there is an intention that the plazas and businesses around Boulder Junction be an active location for festivals, events, restaurants, and local business.

15th Street Design District is a grass roots collective of several architecture, design, technology, and landscape architecture firms on 15th Street between Canyon and Arapahoe. The city has worked with this group on streetscape improvements and some programming. However the potential for this area to be a destination remains untapped.

Be open to future opportunities for districts that are generated from the community. And, it is important to understand that culture and creativity are not restricted to districts. Look for ways to enhance the entire city as a great home for artists, creative professionals, organizations, and businesses.

All districts will benefit from a cohesive approach. The Office of Arts + Culture will collaborate with other city agencies, and particularly the Downtown and University Hill Management / Parking Services Department, to formulate and execute a city-wide approach to districting.

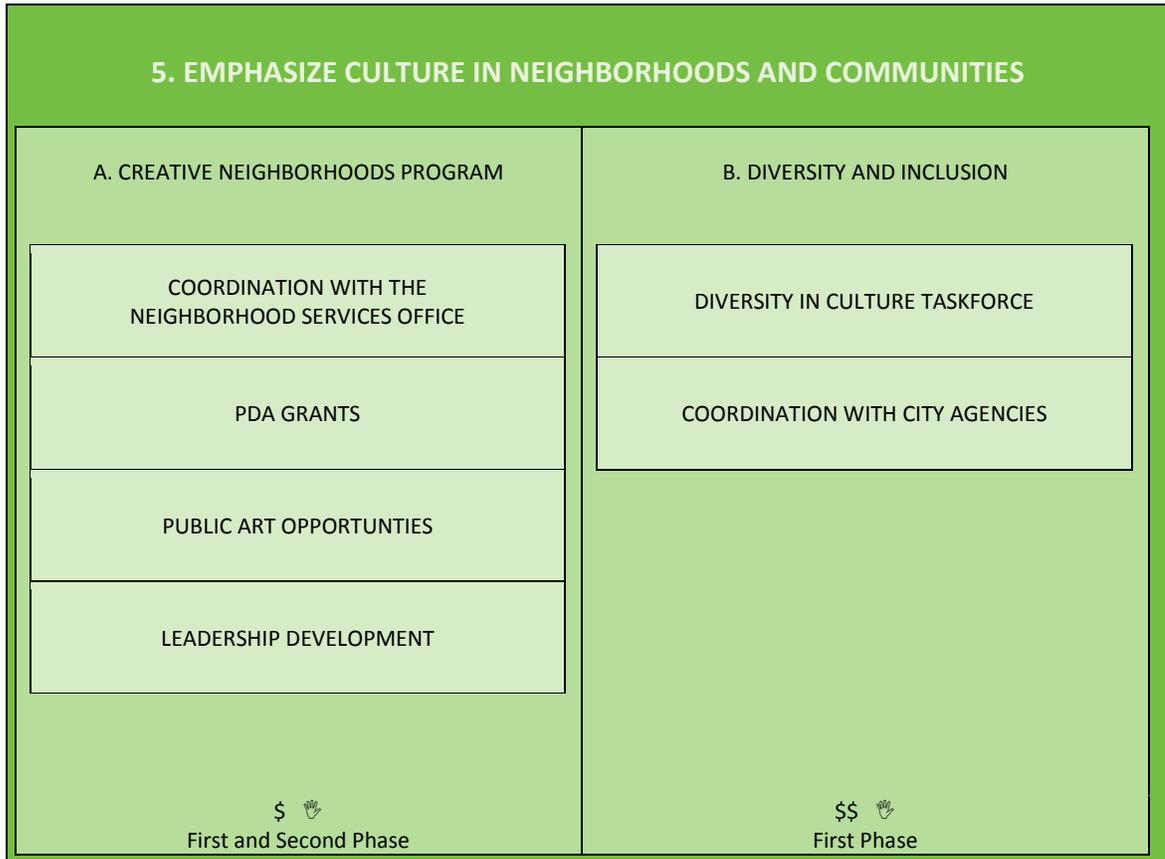

C. Creative Sector Programs

- Convening the Sector – In addition to the Cultural Summits, there is a need to facilitate gatherings for artists, creative workers, the owners of creative businesses, educators, and other groups. In many cases, there are organizations that have taken this on. For others, a gap can exist in opportunities for groups to come together. A careful analysis of groups to best benefit from this convening, finding the right partners in those groups, and working with the community for the best way to program, fund, and coordinate events is necessary.
- Task Force on Workforce and Talent Retention – While Boulder’s creative businesses thrive, on the horizon is a significant challenge in hiring and retaining the young, talented people who will sustain the work that they do. Affordability of housing is certainly a facet of this problem. However, other issues are affecting these young people: a perceived deficit in social offerings, a lack of open and welcoming communities, and a deficit in all forms of diversity. To protect Boulder’s advanced position among centers for the creative sector, a collaboration must be established between the city, organizations, and businesses to address these issues. The Office of Arts + Culture will convene a task force made up of leaders in these areas to explore solutions for the creative workforce and talent retention.

Measures – Success in Strategy Four will be measured against the strategic goal: Enhance Boulder’s leading position as a home to creative professionals and businesses.

- How is the creative economy growing and changing? How does the creative sector compare and interrelate with the other important components of Boulder’s economy?
- What creative professions are currently most critical to the health of the overall economy? What are expectations for the future of the workforce?
- How are the components of talent retention changing, focused on the needs of the most critical elements of the workforce? What is the health of Boulder’s livability and attachment in comparison to competitive cities as homes for creative professionals?
- What is the relationship between the city’s districts and the economy at both the hyper-local and city-wide levels? How do the primary focus sectors in each district take advantage of the services of that district?

Strategy Five – Emphasize Culture in Neighborhoods and Communities, Programmatic Structure:

A. Creative Neighborhoods Program

During the public engagement process, there was discovered a curious, but clear priority among residents regarding how culture is delivered. The data appears to show a sentiment that, while continuing to support events in the existing cultural concentrations of downtown, University Hill, and North Boulder, the people of Boulder would like the city to encourage cultural activity and creative expression at an even more local level. Folks want cultural programs right in their neighborhoods.²⁸ In addition, opportunities exist to craft the aligning of this program area with the newly re-established Neighborhood Services Office and the team working on the revision of the Boulder Valley Comprehensive Plan.

- Coordination with the Neighborhoods Services Office – The Office of Arts + Culture will both build a strong partnership with the Neighborhood Liaison to encourage alignment for improved programs from both agencies. The result will be a stronger set of programs, enhanced by leadership from both offices.

²⁸ Boulder Community Cultural Plan Survey 2014 – See appendix IV.4

- PDA Grants – In 2014 the Office of Arts + Culture incentivized meaningful, fun, and collaborative projects to build attachment through a small grants program. These “Public Displays of Affection” or “PDA” funded projects in which residents expressed their love of Boulder. The Office of Arts + Culture will re-imagine these grants as a neighborhood project. The goals for the program are in no small way linked to the measures of “attachment” that are described in the Knight Soul of the Community Study²⁹ and philosophy of livable cities. However, this is not intended to become an overtly tactical exercise. In the spirit of the concept, the grants should be easy to apply for and execute. Success in this program will not be measured by numbers in attendance, or any revenue or media attention. Rather, the stories that emerge, the good will among neighbors, and the ability for enthusiastic Boulder residents to creatively produce a “love letter to Boulder” will be a substantial success.

- Public Art Opportunities – Nationally a remarkable new series of experiments in deploying public art concepts to neighborhoods is emerging. This trend of rethinking the convention of placing public art only in city centers can have substantial benefits for Boulder. The Office of Arts + Culture will establish a program in which a portion of public art funding is used for neighborhood projects. This will best flourish when the neighbors themselves are closely involved in the process.

- Leadership Development – A substantial amount of cultural activity happens at the hyper-local level. Neighborhoods are centers of cultural activity: art shows in church lobbies, concerts in local parks, art making projects at block parties, or hobbyists sharing their creative work with their neighbors. There is leadership potential to be nurtured which can help encourage creative activity at a block-by-block level. These leaders in neighborhood culture can also be facilitators of city services across many agencies to help municipal programs achieve their goals. The Office of Arts + Culture will work with other city agencies to find and mobilize these neighborhood creative leaders to support their work and partner with them on improving their communities.

B. Diversity and Inclusion

- Diversity in Culture Taskforce – The outreach for the Community Cultural Plan included strong conversations with leaders in many diverse communities, especially among Latino activists. And, the process included a successful effort to receive a depth of cultural diversity among survey respondents. However, a limited nine month public outreach project is hardly adequate to meet our very high expectations about fostering effective civic dialog with all facets of Boulder’s community. The demand, best articulated by a participant in one of our group interviews, for the “authentic expression of diversity” will only be possible over time and with substantial effort on the part of staff. The Office of Arts + Culture will take that time: to build bridges, to align itself with successful initiatives, and to hold the conversations necessary to ensure that the strategies in the Community Cultural Plan are available and effective for all communities in Boulder.

To start this conversation and this learning initiative, the Office of Arts + Culture will partner with groups and leaders to convene a taskforce. The goal of this group will be to face the most challenging aspects of the current conditions in Boulder, among them: the lack of diversity in the community when compared to the rest of the nation, the hurdles for the city government to meet the needs of underserved populations, and the impending crisis that both these issues may cause in social and economic health. Also, the conversation can address a gap in attachment that was identified in the Knight Soul of the Community Study in “openness” and “social offerings”³⁰: Boulder residents do not find this city to be an open and welcoming place. Ideally, this conversation can result in substantial projects by the end of the First Phase of this plan, so that work can begin to ensure that the strategies and vision of the Community Cultural Plan are available to ALL residents, workers, and visitors in Boulder.

- Coordination with City Agencies – Boulder lacks the cultural diversity that is an advantage to most other cities throughout of the nation. The reasons are complex: a stratification of job opportunities, barriers in transportation, the cost of living, competition with surrounding cities, and the deficits in “openness” and “social offerings”. The risks of hesitation are significant; Boulder faces a crisis if we do not remain competitive. The Office of Arts + Culture will join other city agencies that are working on this issue. If successful, harnessing cultural diversity will go far in maintaining our economic and social resiliency, and will ensure that we do not fall behind in the innovation, talent, and relevancy.
- Oversight and Coordination – This strategy, perhaps more than any other, overlaps with other efforts in city government. Therefore, collaboration and engagement are critical. Consider the horizontal elements of these programs: how might public inquiry and oversight that other city agencies employ be necessary for these initiatives? What boards and commissions need to check in?

³⁰ Knight Soul of the Community Study (Knight Foundation, 2010) – See appendix IV.7

Measures – Success in Strategy Five will be measured against the strategic goal: Every resident of Boulder finds ways to creatively impact their neighborhoods and social communities, and has easy access to impactful cultural experiences in the places that are most emotionally important to their everyday lives.

- What are the cultural offerings in Boulder’s neighborhoods? How does this activity compare to large events in the downtown and commercial areas in attendance, audience composition, scale, funding, impact, and perception?
- What are the cultural needs of underserved populations? How does cultural activity and consumption of the diverse communities in Boulder compare? What are the barriers to inclusion and how are they addressed?
- What is the diversity profile of cultural organizations, audiences, and leaders?
- How are trends in diversity, and particularly cultural diversity, expected to affect culture and the creative economy? How are threats to Boulder’s creative economy due to lack of diversity addressed?

Strategy Six – Support for Artists and Creative Professionals, Programmatic Structure:

6. SUPPORT FOR ARTISTS AND CREATIVE PROFESSIONALS
A. DIRECT SUPPORT AND RECOGNITION	B. LIVABILITY AND AFFORDABILITY	C. PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT TOOLS
FELLOWSHIPS	CONSULTATION WITH CITY AGENCIES AND ALIGNED ORGANIZATIONS	PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT GRANTS Strategy One
PROJECT GRANTS Strategy One	TASK FORCE ON WORKFORCE AND TALENT RETENTION Strategy Four	PROGRAMS FOR BUSINESS PRACTICES
$$ 🙌 First and Second Phase	$ 🙌 First Phase	$ 🙌 First and Second Phase

A. Direct Support and Recognition

- Fellowships – Recognizing creative leaders in the community is more than simple goodwill. A program of fellowships graduates beyond simple recognition, acknowledging accomplishment while also investing directly in the work that they do. It can also be a strong tool in advocating for the arts as a priority in the community dialog, as well as sending a message to the world that Boulder is a great place for artists to work; a place that appreciates the contribution of its creative residents. The Office of Arts + Culture will develop a fellowship program to meet these objectives. This need not be strictly a city initiative, and may very well integrate with existing programs in the community such as The Dairy Center Honors.³¹ A fellowship should also consider the benefits of connecting the work of an artist with other aspects of the Community Cultural Plan, for instance the dialog around diversity, or how to improve the vibrant urban environment. It is important that the highest goal of this program is to benefit the artist. There should be an honorarium associated with the award. However, this is not a contract for the purchase of artwork, or a residency, or payment for services in any way. The main objective is that the artist continues to do what they do best. A secondary aim will be to build a competitive accolade; something that creative professionals are eager to acquire and can leverage to the benefit of their career. In keeping with the broad call from the community to consider the widest definition of “culture”, this fellowship should be open to all creative professionals. Accomplishment in fine arts, design, the music industry, architecture, food culture, and all other creative pursuits should be on the table. Carefully consider the structure of this program: how will the artist be chosen in a transparent manner? What is the benefit of receiving this fellowship? How is it presented and communicated in such a way to be an encouraging part of professional life in Boulder?

³¹ See appendix IV.11

- Project Grants – The Community Project Grants and Arts Education Grants, though operationally integrated with first strategy, are none-the-less useful to individual artists. This fact should be strongly communicated to Boulder’s creatives and artists.

B. Livability and Affordability

- Consultation with City Agencies and Aligned Organizations – The challenges of livability and affordability are not unique to creatives. Many people of many different professions are squeezed out of living in Boulder. A robust low-income housing program has done much to ease this problem. However, this program cannot reach out to that significant gap between low wages and the wealthy. These people in the middle are challenged to afford housing. In addition to housing, artists are particularly affected by the high rates of commercial space; their unmet need for studio or practice space has reached a critical point. Finally, affordability is a wide issue, and is not limited to real estate. The sustainable wage index³² identifies several categories of budget expenses for which Boulder is challenged with high costs. All of these issues of livability and affordability are the primary cause of a current crisis in culture: artists no longer find Boulder a sustainable place to live and work. Though the Office of Arts + Culture cannot take on this challenge alone, it can offer leadership and innovation to the conversation. A convening of city agencies and aligned organizations will be the first step in the search for solutions. Examine the issues in a collaborative forum, and look for solutions in the city’s toolbox: programming, incentives, communications, and the regulatory environment.

C. Professional Development Tools

- Professional Development Grants – The Office of Arts + Culture will ensure that the professional development scholarships, as well as leadership programs and convening events, include individual artists. Though not necessarily defined alongside “cultural organizations” or “creative sector businesses”, artists are none-the-less small business owners. They are leaders in the community, and need the same tools for running a successful business, having a positive impact on the community, and using good practices in their work.
- Programs for Business Practices – For Boulder to be a good home for artists and creative professionals, there must be opportunities for them to learn the business skills that will compliment their artistic talents. This will be accomplished through partnerships with several organizations that are suited to provide these services. The Boulder County Arts Alliance and the Office of Arts + Culture recently ended a successful series of programs titled “Business of the Arts”. This ended simply due to a funding lapse, despite demonstrated interest in the program. The collaboration should be renewed and enhanced.

In addition, an investigation has begun to partner with the Boulder Chamber of Commerce and the University of Colorado for bringing the Arts Incubator of the Rockies (AIR) program to Boulder business and creative leaders. AIR convenes leaders in business and the arts around entrepreneurship in creative sector, and has demonstrated success in cities around the region in fostering new partnerships and business ventures.

Finally, there are resources across the region for individuals to gain professional skills. When these workshops or conferences arise, the Office of Arts + Culture should find ways to clear the barriers for Boulder creatives to participate. Coordinating transportation, assisting in communications, offering scholarships, or other efforts will be offered.

Measures – Success in Strategy Six will be measured against the strategic goal: Boulder will increasingly attract artists and creative professionals for all it has to offer, not only in beautiful surroundings and quality of life, but also in the ability to thrive in the creative sector.

- How many individual artists live in Boulder? How do they rate access, affordability and availability of a) housing, b) practice/studio space, c) performance / exhibition space?
- What are the assets and gaps for creative professions in comparison to employment needs? What is the gap between the livelihood of creative professionals and Boulder’s minimum livable wage?
- What are the social and professional offerings available to creative professionals in Boulder? How do they compare with competitive cities? What is the economic impact of spending on social offerings?
- What is the perception of Boulder’s creative economy, both within and outside the city? Do young people studying to enter the creative professions believe that Boulder is a viable environment for them to thrive as they enter the workforce? How are the components of livability in Boulder specifically viewed by creative professionals?

Strategy Seven – Advance Civic Dialogue, Awareness, and Participation, Programmatic Structure:

A. Promoting the Community Cultural Plan

The breadth and complexity of the Community Cultural Plan is designed to provide a variety of tools to the community; some are long standing programs that will be improved and others are new initiatives that will change expectations of the Office of Arts + Culture. Staff will take care to develop a program that a) communicates the improved and new services that are being provided by the city, and b) messages the progress towards achieving goals in the plan.

- Promoting the Grants – An identified flaw for the grants program over the past few years has been in communications. Boulder’s cultural organizations, creative professionals, and arts educators told us an incongruous story: those who have been in Boulder for a long time have come to know the grants program while newer arrivals tend to miss out. In addition, the tools for staff outreach are currently underemphasized. Staff will work as a team to make sure that the full timeline of the grants process: from the initial announcements to the final report, is conducted with the understanding that this program is in service to the grants applicants and recipients.
- Communicating Public Art Calls – One of the most noticeable changes that will occur from the Community Cultural Plan will be the increased conversation around public art. Much of this promotional process is outlined in Strategy 2. This is the case both to ensure that artists are aware of opportunities, and that the public can clearly see the progression of the process. The Office of Arts + Culture will undertake significant outreach to accomplish this.
- Services and Projects of the CCP – In addition to the special needs for communication of grants and public art, the other programs of the Office of Arts + Culture will require some good engagement tools. Staff will develop these tools, and deploy them in a sophisticated manner. A marketing plan and branding strategy is a part of this deployment. The specialized needs of staff and budget should not be overlooked.

B. Facilitate the Civic Dialogue

- Cultural Calendars Task Force – The existing calendars that are published by the Boulder County Arts Alliance and the Boulder Convention and Visitors Bureau do not lack for their depth or ease of use. However, judging by responses to surveys, the community has not yet embraced either resource.³³ The Office of Arts + Culture will assist the effort to reconcile this. The first step is to convene a leadership group to discuss the challenges of useful and productive cultural calendars: the infrastructure, funding, operation and marketing. From that conversation, steps can be taken to improve the resources and get that information into the hands of residents.
- Municipal Programming Partners – The City of Boulder has a long tradition of successful arts programming:

The libraries host popular cinema screenings, concerts, exhibitions, and STEM learning programs,

Recreation centers and parks are venues for performances, visual arts, and runs the Pottery Lab: a long standing neighborhood center for art-making,

³³ Community Cultural Plan Survey 2014 – See Appendix IV.4

Open Space coordinates innovative programs for Plein Air painting, concerts set in nature, and other programs, and

The Human Services Department collaborates with community organizations to amplify remarkable cultural projects.

While all these groups have had success in delivering programs to the community, there has been little coordination between them. The Office of Arts + Culture, while not a programming agency itself, can offer leadership and facilitation, assist in aligning the goals of these programs, and can offer advice on how the city's programs best fit into the menu of opportunities offered throughout the community. It is recommended that a working group be formed, hosted by the Office of Arts + Culture, which gathers these leaders.

- Public Inquiry Initiatives – Direct engagement with residents of Boulder is a guiding principle of the Community Cultural Plan. In this way, every program and initiative must consider how to steward a serious and effective public inquiry element. It is beneficial for the Office of Arts + Culture to collect the public inquiry elements of each program into a single clearing house. Using online, in person, and survey tools, staff will clear barriers to participation. One profound step to do this will be in making a single point of conversation that can then be applied to each strategy and program area.

A healthy cultural environment in Boulder will include individuals and organizations who are engaged and prepared to hold government accountable. The success of the Community Cultural Plan depends as much on this community advocacy as on any staff person, strategy, or funding that might be assigned. Though the Office of Arts + Culture cannot promote lobbying around specific issues, it is important that advocacy for the arts be encouraged in general. Community activists will be encouraged to continue their work and given every opportunity to participate. When gaps in advocacy at the local level exist, the Office of Arts + Culture should encourage the formation of interest groups or organizations to fill the need.

- Online Engagement – The platform of www.boulderarts.org is an asset. The Office of Arts + Culture will invest improving the website for communicating information, resourcing shared knowledge, deploying interactive tools, and as the nexus through which the public can access the good work that will grow out of the Community Cultural Plan.
- Research Projects – Research is required to understand how the Community Cultural Plan is meeting the goals for each strategy:

Strategy One: Support Cultural Organizations – Have a substantial and positive effect on the ability of Boulder's many cultural organizations to advance their operational capacity, promote organizational resiliency, and encourage innovation for the benefit of the community.

Strategy Two: Reinvent our Public Art Program – Many individuals, businesses, governments, organizations, and developers will be encouraged to invest in improvements to public spaces through the addition of meaningful, innovative, and quality works of art. The municipal investment in public art will be a model, using a system of publicly transparent, sustainable, and innovative practices to robustly commission artworks of enduring cultural value.

Strategy Three: Create and Enhance Facilities and Venues – Improve the resiliency of visual and performing arts organizations, and the experience of their audiences, which are currently challenged by gaps in venues. Mitigate the barriers to innovation and sustainability that are encountered due to affordability of space.

Strategy Four: Enhance the Vitality of the Creative Economy – Enhance Boulder’s leading position as a home to creative professionals and businesses.

Strategy Five: Emphasize Culture in Neighborhoods and Communities – Every resident of Boulder finds ways to creatively impact their neighborhoods and social communities, and has easy access to impactful cultural experiences in the places that are most emotionally important to their everyday lives.

Strategy Six: Support Individual Artists and Creative Professionals – Boulder will increasingly attract artists and creative professionals for all it has to offer, not only in beautiful surroundings and quality of life, but also in the ability to thrive in the creative sector.

Strategy Seven: Advance Civic Dialog, Awareness, and Participation – Every person in Boulder will understand their role in the culture of the community, feel that access to information about culture is readily at hand, and will feel invited into the conversation.

Strategy Eight: Engage our Youth – At the end of this nine-year plan, the young people who are now studying the creative pursuits will find Boulder the perfect place to grow into cultural leaders.

By evaluating these goals with compelling and complete data, through the questions in each “measures” section, the Office of Arts + Culture can track progress over the course of the plan.

For the work required to answer the measures, it is important that staff responsibilities for research and data from across these strategies be collected under a single effort. That staff member will be tasked with working with all other staff to ensure that these measures are consistently prioritized.

There are many specific tools that can be utilized for evaluation of the measures:

- Grants and Public Art Programs Evaluation Tools
 - Artist Census
 - Community Surveys
 - Cultural Asset Mapping
 - Cultural Vitality Index (WESTAF)
 - Online Engagement (Mindmixer)
 - Youth Council Engagement
 - Media Tracking, Traditional and Social
 - Taskforce and Sector Convening
 - Public Inquiry Events
 - Boulder Arts Commission Consultation
 - Annual Report to the Community
- Task Force on Culture in the Media – A need has been identified for more and better coverage and critique of the arts in local and regional media. This is all the more important as the platforms for information and dialog about the arts diversifies. The Office of Arts + Culture may not be best placed to play a leadership role in filling in this gap. However, it should lead in facilitating the conversation about culture in the media.

C. Project Boulder's Cultural Identity

- Recognizing Achievement – Celebrating Boulder's creative talent has several benefits for the community: to recognize and promote excellence, to encourage leadership, to communicate Boulder as a great home for artists to thrive, and to build a brand of innovative contemporary practice in all forms of creativity. The Office of Arts and Culture is in a position to amplify the accomplishments artists receive locally, regionally, and nationally through the communications tools described above.
- Boulder in the Media and Academic Works – In partnership with the Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Office of Arts + Culture can enhance the promotional work of artists, creative professionals and organizations. Staff will build relationships with the media, focusing on those reporters and critics in traditional and social media and from across the country. When an important event or program is planned, staff should have the tools and capacity to advise artists and organizations on the means to produce quality collateral, strategically connect them with the media, and encourage coverage.

In addition to references in the media, the Office of Arts + Culture will build relationships to encourage academics working in fields related to culture and the creative economy to include Boulder individuals, organizations, and programs into their work.

- Open Source Scrapbook – The Office of Arts + Culture will be tracking coverage of Boulder’s culture and creative sector for the purposes of measuring success of the Community Cultural Plan. There is an opportunity to leverage this data for an online resource that others may use in their own promotional initiatives. The data collection process can be enhanced by making the resource open- and crowd-sourced.
- Boulder in Industry Convening – The national conversation about government policy, stewardship, contemporary creative practice, and programming for culture and the creative economy is conducted in several national and regional forums which convene thought leaders and practitioners. The Office of Arts + Culture will be active in both encouraging Boulder’s creative professionals to represent the city, and should ensure that staff can participate themselves. Every important industry convening event across the country will have representation from Boulder.

D. Participate in Regional and National Leadership

- Denver-area Collective Leadership Initiative – An proposal to develop collective leadership for creative organizations in the Aurora-Denver-Boulder metropolitan area has been initiated by Denver Arts and Venues and the Bonfils Stanton Foundation. This may eventually take the form of a regional alliance for culture and creative sector professionals and businesses. As of the writing of this document, the initiative is still in its formative stages, and promises to provide for many benefits that are detailed in the Community Cultural Plan. In time this effort may: a) provide resources for a broad approach to research and data, b) advocate for the creative sector at the state and national levels, c) convene the community and provide programs for good practices, and d) provide collective services. The Office of Arts + Culture will continue to play a leadership role in the exploration of collective leadership, and will advocate for Boulder in that forum.
- Leadership in Good Practices – The Office of Arts + Culture will participate in the national conversation about the best practices of government cultural programming. This includes leadership in the development of these practices, interpreting them for the situation in Boulder, and implementing them to the best possible standards. The Office of Arts + Culture will be a model to other governments for cultural affairs at the municipal level.

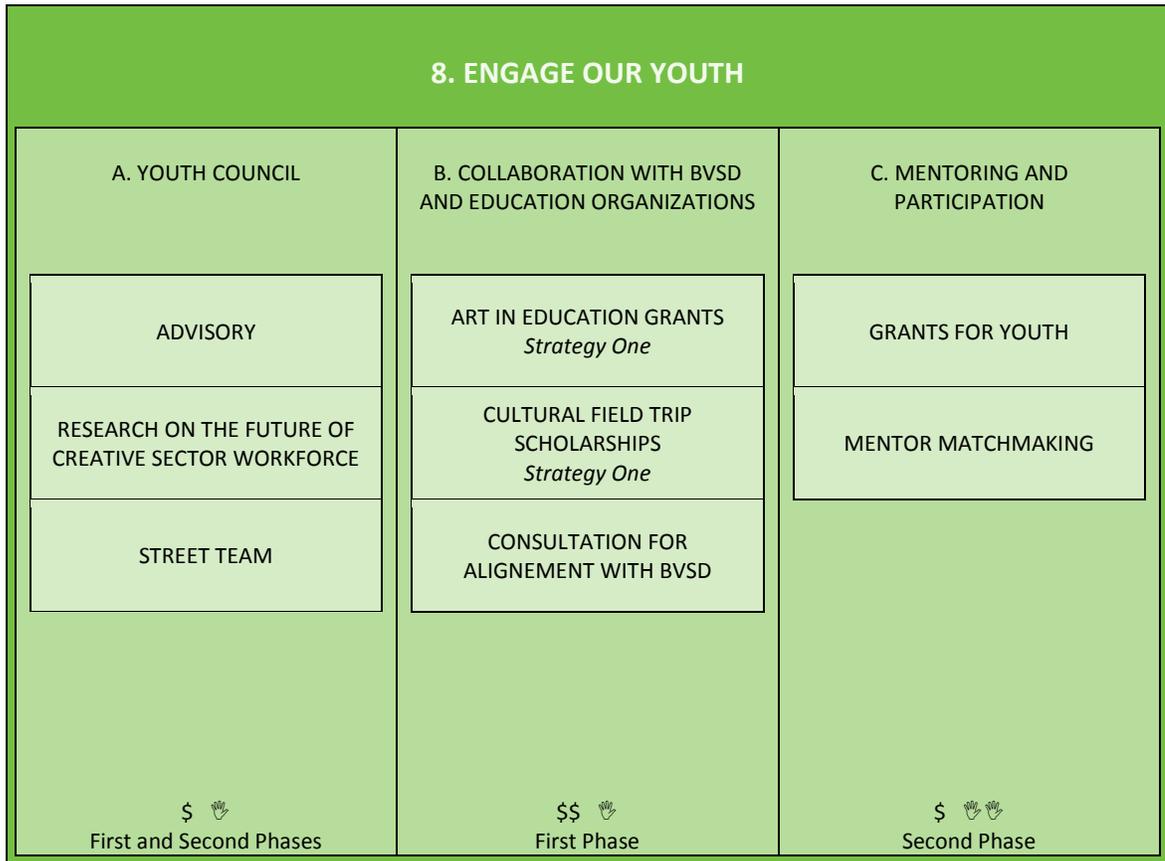

(This section will be addressed in the final draft.)

Measures – Success in Strategy Seven will be measured against the strategic goal: Every person in Boulder will understand their role in the culture of the community, feel that access to information about culture is readily at hand, and will feel invited into the conversation.

- What are the opportunities for the community to inquire, and be heard, on matters of culture? How many people are participating?
- What are the results of public inquiry on decision making? How does the city follow through on questions and suggestions raised through public engagement?
- To what degree do residents feel that Boulder is an “open” culture: a place that is welcoming, where ideas are encouraged, and innovations possible?
- What is the perception of the ability of individuals to creatively impact their community?
- What is the nature of the civic dialog about culture in the community, traditional and social media, and in other forums?

Strategy Eight – Engage our Youth, Programmatic Structure:

A. Youth Council

In considering the nine-year time horizon of the Community Cultural Plan, an opportunity exists to collaborate directly with the creative young people who will be the cultural leaders at the end of that time. Youth, for instance in their junior and senior years of high school, who plan to pursue creative professions will be approached to join this Youth Council.

- Advisory – The Office of Arts + Culture will take advantage of the fresh perspective the members of the Youth Council can provide. In addition to the advice that can benefit programs, these individuals can use this experience to develop leadership skills that could become an asset later for service on boards, commissions, and panels.
- Research on the Future of the Creative Sector Workforce – By participating over the full nine years of the plan, the members of the Youth Council can be engaged longitudinally for data and stories that may reveal how the Community Cultural Plan serves individuals that will be entering full participation in culture as the plan comes to a close. The Office of Arts + Culture will convene this group, and develop a series of tools for measuring their progress. This is best done in close collaboration with the schools and educational experts, for instance at the University of Colorado. The project will also require a significant commitment from the youth. Nine years is a long time for continuous engagement; staff will not only strategize ways to keep people interested in participating, but will also create contingencies for the inevitable attrition that will occur.

- Street Team – In the initial years, the Youth Council can serve as ambassadors for the Community Cultural Plan. The Office of Arts + Culture will deploy these motivated individuals as a “street team”: serving to bring the public inquiry and research projects of the Plan directly to the community. Staff will find the right ways to thank them for their service.

B. Collaboration with Boulder Valley School District and other Education Organizations

- Art Education Grants & Cultural Field Trip Scholarships - These grants, coordinated in the Strategy One, will only function at their fullest potential when aligned with the mission, goals, and structures of the educators and administrators that stand to benefit. The Office of Arts + Culture will coordinate with BVSD, other school districts, education organizations, private schools, and educators to ensure that the format of these grants are designed to the best service of the students and teachers.
- Consultation for Alignment with BVSD - The Office of Arts + Culture will take advantage of the opportunity to work with BVSD on a close alignment of goals and systems. This is especially true in matters of cultural participation, civic dialog, and the creative economy.

C. Mentoring Program

- Grants for Youth – Creative leaders among Boulder’s high school and university youth may be a perfect fit for the goals of some of the grants described in Strategy One. In particular, the Community Project grants and Professional Development scholarships promise to provide young people with specific opportunities. In addition to the benefits that may arise from awarding youth, the mere process of applying for grants is a valuable learning experience and will be encouraged. To accomplish this, the Office of Arts + Culture will create special outreach and mentoring programs to encourage youth to apply for grants, give special assistance in the application and reporting processes, and support the recipient of a grant to ensure success. Staff may also consider assigning specific grants especially for youth.

- Mentor Matchmaking – Staff will find sponsorship opportunities, or directly partner with an organization, to connect young creative leaders with practicing artists and creative professionals in the community for mentoring relationships. The opportunities for such a program to support Community Cultural Plan goals regarding participation and workforce over the long term are important to consider.

Measures – Success in Strategy Eight will be measured against the strategic goal: At the end of this nine-year plan, the young people who are now studying the creative pursuits will find Boulder the perfect place to grow into cultural leaders.

- What are the offerings for young people to learn about, and be inspired to become, cultural participants, cultural leaders and creative professionals? What is the impact of these programs?
- What are the barriers for young people to pursue the full arc of their career goals in Boulder? How does mitigation of these barriers affect the composition of the creative workforce?
- What is the perception of culture among young people? Do they feel engaged, and feel that social offerings in culture are adequate? Do they feel that Boulder offers them the environment for building a successful career and creative life?

DRY

III.2 CCP Time Horizon:

The implementation of the above strategies will occur over a nine-year time horizon:

This nine year scope is divided into three year increments. Work plans will be developed by staff for each year to give guidance to the day-to-day operation of the Strategies and to set achievable goals. The end of each phase is considered a “transitional year”: 2018, 2021, and 2024. In the work plans for these transitional years, staff will refine all the strategies and program areas, and update necessary documents such as the Public Art Implementation Plans and grants program guidelines. For the final transitional year, an update of this Community Cultural Plan should be considered.

III.3 Financial Recommendations

Since 2011 the City of Boulder uses Priority Based Budgeting (PBB) as a tool to ensure city service priorities are based on community goals and values. Implementation of PBB is two-fold; follow best practices for allocating resources to ensure fiscal health and identify a prioritization scheme. Programs and services are ranked and prioritized based on two sets of criteria, a) the ability to help the community achieve desired results and b) basic program attributes.

Community Results Goals:

- Accessible and Connected Community
- Economically Vital Community
- Environmentally Stable Community
- Healthy and Socially Thriving Community
- Safe Community
- Good Governance

Basic Program Criteria:

- Mandate to Provide Service
- Change in Demand for Service
- Reliance on City to Provide Service
- Self Sufficient / Cost Recovery
- Cost Avoidance / Increasing Inefficiencies

Responsive to the criteria, the Office of Arts + Culture will actively align the documentation of initiatives, research, and evaluations from within the strategies and programs in order to be specifically responsive to the needs of the PBB process.

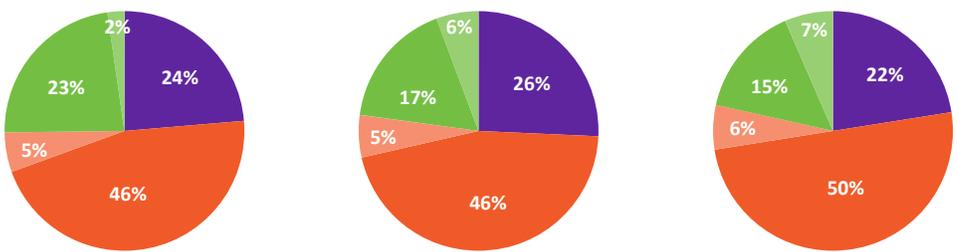

III.3.1 Funding Sources

In the near term, the Office of Arts + Culture will continue to be funded through a contribution from the General Fund, with a special fund established for public art from the proceeds of the Community Culture and Safety Tax. This will provide flexibility to begin priority initiatives immediately upon adoption of the Community Cultural Plan.

In the first phase of the time horizon, a sustainable source of funding for Public Art needs to be implemented. Then, the potential of a secure funding source for the grants program will be explored, for deployment in the third phase.

III.3.2 Projected Uses of Funds:

Use	First Phase Goal for 2018	Middle Phase Goal for 2021	Final Phase Goal for 2024
Personnel & Administration <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Increase staff from 2 FTE to a fully staffed office of 6 FTE by the end of the middle phase. Identify and fund any key administrative gaps including professional development, equipment and technology, administration of grants and public art, etc. * These amounts are a preliminary estimate, and will continue to be refined as the process continues.	$310,000*	$450,000*	$450,000*
Cultural Grants <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Funds will be used for distribution to grant recipients only. By 2021, a sustainable source of funding will be identified. 	$600,000	$800,000	$1,000,000
Sponsorships / Partnerships <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Increases will be considered based on the developing needs of sponsored and partnered programs, as well as for adding additional sponsored events and partners each year. 	$70,000	$100,000	$120,000
Public Art (Assigned Fund) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Funds will be used for contracts with artists in the commissioning of public art only. In the first two years, this funding will be derived from the Community Culture and Safety Tax. By 2018, a permanent source of funding will be identified. After the permanent sources of funding are in place, it is expected that the budget will fluctuate from year to year, with $300,000 being an expected average. 	$300,000	$300,000	$300,000
Programming for Strategies <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Funds will be used for the programs, events, and materials to operate the strategies. A portion of this budget will be assigned to technical maintenance of the public art collection. 	$30,000	$100,000	$130,000
TOTAL:	$1,310,000	$1,750,000	$2,000,000

Context – A Benchmarking Study by Cultural Planning Group

As an integral part of developing the cultural plan for Boulder, a cohort of six communities was examined from across the country sharing certain characteristics with Boulder. They are small to mid-sized municipalities with large state universities (for the most part). They range in size from 66,900 to 243,000 or so. Three are in Colorado and were chosen based on perceptions of their arts and culture amenities and municipal support. Additionally, the communities chosen for benchmarking generally have profiles of being progressive communities with values similar to Boulder.

The benchmarking research was an opportunity to ask “how do we compare to other places like us?” In approaching this research, there were two different approaches utilized. One was basic research on the support for arts and culture in each community. Questions posed included: What role do these communities play in supporting the arts? What form does that support take? What is their level of arts and cultural funding? What role do they play in providing arts and cultural facilities? The answers vary widely, with their individual approaches to arts and cultural support responding to the unique qualities of the community.

Secondly, data from the CV Suite, a research product of WESTAF³⁴ was utilized to understand the characteristics of the creative landscape – creative occupations, creative industries and the non-profit cultural industry.

In addition to Boulder, the five communities studied are:

- Eugene, OR
- Madison, WI
- Tempe, AZ
- Loveland, CO
- Ft. Collins, CO

¹ The Creative Vitality™ Suite was designed and developed by WESTAF, a regional nonprofit arts service organization, experienced research organization, and developer of technology solutions for the arts. Information is available at www.cvsuite.org.

Table 1: Population and University Presence

	Population	University	University Enrollment
Boulder, CO	103,166	University of Colorado	30,265
Tempe, AZ	168,288	Arizona State University	83,301
Madison, WI	243,344	University of WI-Madison	43,193
Eugene, OR	159,190	University of Oregon	24,181
Loveland, CO	66,859		N/A
Ft. Collins, CO	155,000	Colorado State University	31,725

Support within the six communities, including Boulder, ranges from grants for arts and cultural organizations and individual artists, to support for facilities and public art programs. All commit local tax dollars to support the arts, primarily through the general fund with the exception of Tempe, AZ where the programs are funded through a dedicated 1/10th of a cent sales tax for the arts. This sales tax was a 10-year assessment, primarily focused on funding the capital and operating costs of the Tempe Center for the Arts. In some instances the municipalities own and operate cultural facilities. In others they may subsidize local facilities. Programming expenditures vary by municipality depending on local tradition.

All five cities examined in here had active public art programs. All public art programs are funded through the capital projects funds and four of the five are dedicated as 1% for art programs. Eugene, OR is on any project over $50,000.

Per capita funding of the arts by the municipality ranges from a low of $6.94 in Boulder to a high of $59.00 in Tempe, AZ. Average per capita funding among the benchmark cities is $28.59 and the median is $33.02.

Table 2: Local tax-funded support for arts and culture

	Per Capita expenditure	Grants for the arts	Total Annual Budget, including facility funding/subsidy	Public Art Program
Boulder, CO	$6.94	$242,000	$587,872	$128,000
Tempe, AZ	$59.00	$150,000	$9,000,000	$152,000
Madison, WI	$8.71	$170,000	$1,970,000	$150,000
Eugene, OR	$31.25	$57,000	$4,975,000	1% capital $50K+
Loveland, CO	$35.54	$-	$2,376,310	$351,040
Ft. Collins, CO	$34.78	$364,500	$5,066,866	$325,000

In addition to examining the municipal support for non-profit arts, individual artists and public art, this study utilized data from the Creative Vitality Suite (CVSuite) from WESTAF, a research tool to examine and compare creative activity, both for-profit and non-profit, in benchmark communities.

Data for this report was derived by approximating municipal boundaries through zip codes. As a result, the population provided in the CVSuite for the communities examined may differ than the Census estimates, as zip codes stretch beyond municipal boundaries.

The CV Suite draws from secondary sources including ESMI, the National Center of Charitable Statistics and the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies.

A “Snapshot” report on Boulder is included in the Appendix of this plan that includes background on the source data.

In a review of the CVSuite data, the findings regarding creative occupations the following:

- It is notable that in nearly all instances the average and median wages in Boulder are higher (the highest in fact in most cases) - out of the 58 creative occupations examined through CVSuite, Boulder had the highest average and median wages in nearly 85% of occupations.
- Of these six cities for comparison Boulder has the highest percentage of jobs in creative occupations, 8.85% of all jobs. Five of the six cities are university towns (only Loveland does not have a public university).

- Tempe, Boulder and Madison have nearly the same number of architects, though Boulder is much smaller than the other two communities (1/2 the population of Madison).
- Boulder, perhaps not surprisingly, has the highest number of craft artists of the six cities.
- Boulder has the highest number of artists though not the highest number of fine artists.
- Boulder has the highest number of actors and musicians.
- Boulder has the highest percentage of its population engaged in creative occupations of the comparison cities (slightly higher than Madison).

It is a reasonable observation that Boulder for its population is highly engaged in creative activities as measured by creative workers, creative occupations and overall creative industries. Of the six cities examined, Boulder has a far more robust and vital creative economy

Other notable data regarding Boulder and creative activity:

- Between 2012 and 2013 there was an increase of 1% in total number of creative jobs in Boulder.
- In 2013 the creative industries represented nearly $2.3B in industry sales.
- In descending order, the five occupations with the greatest number of creative workers in Boulder are:
 - Photographers
 - Writers and authors
 - Musicians
 - Postsecondary teachers
 - Graphic designers

Summary Findings from the Public Inquiry Process

The Community Cultural Plan public inquiry was conducted online and on the streets from October – December 2014 in a series of engagements that were collectively branded as “The Culture Kitchen”. The priorities of this process were to a) hear from as wide and diverse a group as possible, b) to assemble a sample that was large enough to be convincingly valid, and c) establish measures that could be repeated and improved over the time horizon of the CCP.

Culture Kitchen Inputs:

1. Pop-up Events
2. Onsite Interviews and Group Discussions
3. Neighborhood Conversations
4. MindMixer (The Recipe Box)
5. Full Online Survey
6. Intercept Survey

Response:

- 25 Culture Kitchen Pop-up Events

Findings: Key Themes

The resource of artists as an asset to Boulder:

- Addressing affordable venues and spaces
- Developing a city focus on arts and cultural activities/events
- More support for individual artists
- Authentically celebrating diversity
- A focus on historic preservation
- Addressing access and affordability (housing, lifelong arts education)

Fostering involvement and support from the City government:

- Funding (more than just The Dairy and BMOCA)
- Communications
- Cultural diversity

Cultivating private sector support:

- Venture capitalist community
- Tech community
- Foundations

Creating an arts district in Boulder:

- Collaborative spaces for artists to live/work
- Performing spaces/rehearsal spaces
- Use of existing building (industrial)
- Multi-use

Improved communications, artist collaborations and press coverage:

- Community awareness
- One source with all events, programming, opportunities, etc (currently there are 19 different sites but events-oriented)
- Media relations

Findings: What Do You Love About Boulder?

- Open Spaces: Trails, outdoor sports, competitive sports environment
- The Culinary Culture: past, present, and future.
- Farm-to-table origins
- Sustainability and support of local agriculture industry
- The Independent Music Scene
- Collaborative culture
- Local venues

What is your favorite cultural place or activity in Boulder?

- Farmer's market
- BMOCA
- NoBo Arts District
- Macky Auditorium
- E-Town Hall
- International film festival
- Chautauqua summers
- Dinner theater
- Open Studio
- The Dairy
- The Bluegrass Festival
- Dushanbe Teahouse
- The Library
- Story Slams
- CU arts and cultural events
- Visiting Denver for arts and cultural experiences

Findings: Thoughts on Vision

Some common themes arose when we asked people for the vision for Boulder's culture and creative sector. Below are samples that represent some of those ideas that came up frequently:

"I would like for Boulder to value art as an integral aspect of our humanity and sense of wellbeing. And, to make art accessible to all, regardless of income."

"To create a culture of philanthropy for the arts, if this could be encouraged, public / private partnerships could be established to fund some great art and culture in Boulder."

"A more diverse and integrated representation of art; including African American, Hispanic, Jewish, etc. cultures."

"20 years ago Boulder was known as an 'Arts' city. I would love for Boulder to once again be known nationally as a community that is supporting and generating avant guard art. Having more festivals does not achieve this goal, the City needs to support artist living here and producing art."

"I would like to see more public art that represents the current, more educated and sophisticated art appreciators that live and work here."

Findings: The Role of the City

Respondents also answered the question of the municipal government's role in some key ways:

"It's important for the City government to provide funding and structure such as initiatives and zoning changes to accomplish a new art and culture vision."

"The City should create more funding through taxation and partnership with private donors."

"It is within the best interests for Boulder for the city to value art as an integral part of our humanity, then plan and fund accordingly."

"The city should connect people and geographic areas and provide the necessary ongoing support to ensure projects are completed. And, importantly, the city is in a unique position to encourage philanthropy."

"Provide incentives for developing an arts/cultural district. City needs to motivate redevelopment that allows for arts spaces – finding spaces for all creatives, commercial as well as non-commercial."

Findings: The Latino Perspective

During the Culture Kitchen events, the CCP team put out a special call to the Latino community of Boulder. Online and intercept surveys were distributed, and a special forum was held. Below are some key results of that inquiry.

- More representation for the Latino community in city government is needed.
- Latino community marginalized from main Boulder community.
- City treats events with “Latino agenda add-ons” rather than integrated into the events.
- Want events which integrate all cultures and show “real” culture rather than the stereotypical.
- Zoning is a significant issue when organizing neighborhood events.
- Lack of cultural understanding within city communications.
- A distinct split between Latino and White begins in middle school – there is a need to change the patterns.
- Latino youth need space outside of school – access and affordability are issues.
- Arts and cultural opportunities for youth is significantly lacking.
- Creation of a family-oriented cultural center is a need – “Gathering places create understanding”.
- The investigation of how the government can support culture in minority communities needs more time, resources, and tools to complete.

“It’s a puzzle – Boulder is a beautiful place, but a contradiction at times. There are so many good things: the natural wealth, everything is clean and safe, but we don’t participate in it. We are left on the outside; someone else owns it”.

“We need a voice...a champion in city government ... someone who really knows the community and understands the needs. “

“Arts and culture for us is a way of life...it is in our everyday routines, part of all of our celebrations...we can share that with Boulder”.

“Great events include the Latino Youth Conference and the Women’s Conference...they are life changing for some Latinos.

Critical Insights

- Respondents are creatively active, with almost all respondents indicating they participate in arts and cultural activities.
- Both residents and non residents want to see better support of artists and arts and cultural nonprofits.
- The majority of respondents cite more traditional modes of participation such as attending live performances, art galleries and shows, museums, and festivals. Many want to see more arts and cultural activities within their own neighborhoods, and at non-traditional venues.
- There is significant support for a tax increase to support arts and cultural activities.
- There is a significant call to the city to increase their support arts and culture

"I have a vision of a Boulder where artists are more involved and active in the planning and spending decisions."

"I would like to feel like Boulder citizens and city Council hold and support art as a vital aspect of "what we value" and "who we are" as a culture, and to recognize that art is a valuable economic resource. There are so many talented people who call Boulder home."

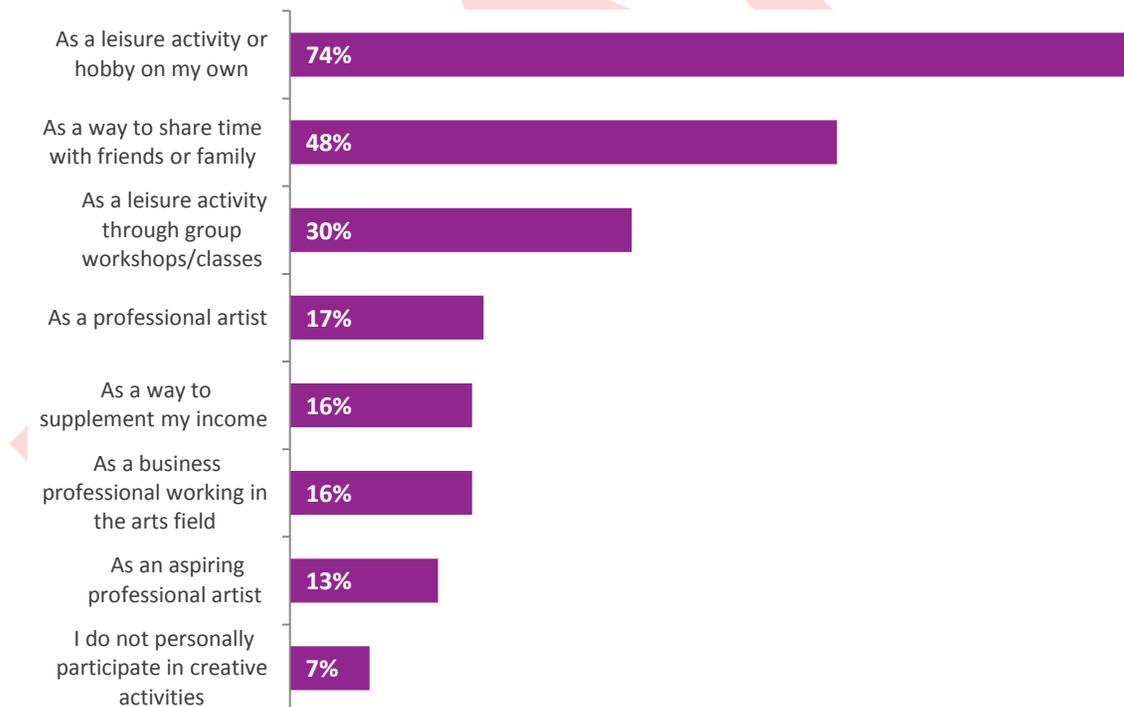

"The best single feature of Boulder has been Pearl Street. It is walker friendly, and the collection of sidewalk cafes brings people out of the buildings. It's a great place to people watch. I would love to see more participatory cultural activities in different parts of the city."

Boulder is at a crossroads...needs to choose between being an "elite" destination or a unique creative community...it can't be both.

Type	Funding	Pros	Cons	Models
1. Traditional Percent-for-art	A portion (typically 1% - 3%) of the construction budget of municipal capital improvement projects is set aside from the project budget for the purposes of commissioning public artworks. In most cases, a threshold amount is set; for instance the rule might apply only for projects that have a total budget of more than $50,000.00.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Protected politically over the long term. Public is invested in founding the program. Palatable implications to tax rates. Could be applied to utilities spending to increase capacity. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Funding will be inconsistent over time. Funding is typically low, and projects few, for our size city. Project sites only associated with their source construction projects. 	Denver, Longmont, Ft. Collins, Grand Junction.
2. Public Benefit / Private Mandate	Private developers are required to set aside a portion of commercial projects to acquire artwork for public display. Often, additional rules are included such as a threshold budget, or the stipulation that the owner may contribute the amount to a pool which is spent by public commissioning.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Adds a source of funding and projects to build a critical mass of artworks. Adds a tool for fulfilling public benefit requirements. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> May not be palatable to developers. 	Aurora (in addition to traditional percent-for-art).
3. Percent-for-art Pooled	Rather than being derived directly from CIP project budgets, the funds are calculated according to the budgets of CIP projects, and then transferred from the general fund into a pooled account. Funds are then spent based on a strategic plan, rather than solely based on an association with the CIP project site. Note: transportation and/or Parks and Recreation projects may be exempted from the rule.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> More flexible budgets and sites. Projects can be distributed geographically in a more strategic way, rather than only adjacent to city buildings. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Possibly less politically stable. Requires complex budgeting and analysis, and risks incomplete calculations. 	Loveland.
4. General Fund	An account within the city budget, derived from the general fund or some other reliable source, is assigned to the commissioning of public art. In many cases the amount is determined by a formula, such as a percentage of the total general fund.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Offers flexibility for the implementation of a strategy over short periods of time. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Most precarious in terms of sustainable funding. 	Co Springs.
5. Private Fee or Tax Increment	A specific allocation derived from an incremental tax or fee is transferred to a special account. For instance, a portion of the fees on permits or a portion of the seat tax for a convention or theater district can be applied to commissioning public art.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Offers a complimentary funding mechanism that can bolster a standard model. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> May not be palatable to those impacted by the fees or taxes. Knight Soul of the Community – Summary of Findings by Community
(<http://knightfoundation.org/sotc/findings/boulder/>, August 26, 2015)

Boulder, Colo.

The information in our study covers the Boulder, Colo., Metropolitan Statistical Area.

In each community, the Knight Soul of the Community study identified factors that emotionally attach residents to where they live. Some of these community characteristics that drive attachment were rated highly by residents, and are therefore community strengths while others were rated lower, making them opportunities for improvement. This information can provide communities a roadmap for increasing residents' emotional attachment to where they live, which the study found has a significant relationship to economic vitality.

Attachment to the Boulder area is trending higher in 2010. Residents' passion for the Boulder area is significantly higher and residents' ratings of it being the perfect place to them is significantly higher in 2010.

In the Boulder area, social offerings (entertainment infrastructure, places to meet people), aesthetics (an area's physical beauty and green spaces) and openness (how welcoming a place is) are the most important factors emotionally connecting residents to where they live.

Aesthetics is perceived as a community strength. Parks and trails were rated significantly higher in 2010.

Openness, particularly to racial and ethnic minorities and social offerings, particularly residents caring about each other remain areas needing improvement.

Perceptions of the local economy and safety significantly improved; however, neither were key drivers factors in attaching residents to the area.

Knight Soul of the Community 2010: Boulder Implications

The purpose of Knight Soul of the Community is to provide communities a roadmap for understanding what attaches residents to their community and why it matters – not to be prescriptive on what communities should do with the information. However, the findings do point to some general implications and suggestions, some of which the community may be already undertaking, or provide new opportunities for consideration.

Like the other 25 communities studied in Soul of the Community, Boulder's key attachment drivers are social offerings, aesthetics and openness. However, it is not as simple as identifying best practices in each of these areas and replicating them everywhere. Instead, as the name implies, Soul of the Community encourages a conversation about a community's soul or essential essence as a place around these key drivers. Some possible questions to ask are: What is it about our aesthetics/social offerings/welcomeness that is unique to our community? Where do we excel or struggle in those areas? Using that information to optimize those drivers to encourage resident attachment—and potentially local economic growth – is what Soul of the Community seeks to accomplish.

Attachment to Boulder has increased during the three years of the study. This finding alone helps to demonstrate that attachment to place is about more than jobs and the economy. The things that most attach residents to the area – social offerings, openness and aesthetics – and the general rating of these areas by residents have remained basically unchanged during all three years of the study.

A consistent and clear strength of Boulder in the eyes of its residents is the area's parks, playgrounds and trails which are rated similarly to the natural beauty of the area, due to a significant jump in the rating of parks, playgrounds and trails in 2010. Ratings of aesthetics in the Boulder area far surpass those in its comparison communities, which includes high-performing coastal communities. This is a central strength the community should leverage.

An additional strength is Boulder's relatively high ratings of welcomeness to young talent. In 2009, young talent was perceived as significantly more welcome than the year before, and this gain was maintained in 2010. Boulder was one of the very few communities studied that had a significant increase in perceived welcomeness to young talent in any year of the study. This important and unique momentum is critical to maintain.

Despite having higher ratings than its comparison communities, social offerings remains a challenge area for Boulder, particularly the perception that residents care about each other. This must be addressed as social offerings are particularly important to young people.

Additionally, the community's perceived openness is another challenge area, despite its gains with young talent. Although residents rate it as fairly welcoming to young adults, young families and gays and lesbians, it has lower ratings in welcomeness to all other groups. For attachment to continue to grow and for people to want to come and stay in Boulder, all residents must feel welcomed there.

Clearly, Boulder has made unique and significant gains in recent years in feeling like a welcoming place for young talent. This finding coupled with its upward trending levels of attachment position Boulder as a community on the rise if it can maintain and even improve this momentum. The community should market its clear strength in aesthetics and welcomeness to young talent as a hallmark differentiator between it and comparable communities.

Additionally, creating social offerings that take advantage of the aesthetics is warranted. The community should continue to provide arts and cultural opportunities and social community events, but it should focus more on using them to build resident caring in the community. For example, have the young professionals lead a series of community events in the arts district or along the riverfront or beach so they can volunteer their professional expertise to other groups in the community (tax help for young families, English as second language service for new local citizens, showcasing local bands, etc.). This will improve perceptions of openness to all while also potentially improving the perception of residents caring for each other.

Cultural Vitality

What does it mean for a community to be “culturally vital”? More than a mere measure of economic factors or a count of destinations, vitality is a perspective that examines community through the health and resiliency of the many facets of creativity expressed by, and consumed by, the people there.

First, we all fall into categories, or roles, of participation:

The size of the circle, though not a corollary to data, represents the relative size of the population that is participating as described. Thus: the deeper the participation, the smaller the population.

Next, culture affects our lives in several places: at home, at work, in a classroom, in our “third places”, in a museum, gallery, studio, or performance venue, or in the public realm.

Finally, the creative activity in our lives is delivered to us from different sources: from non-profit museums, venues, and organizations, from for-profit businesses, from the media and entertainment industry, from educational institutions, from the support provided by government, from friends and neighbors, from religious institutions, from social clubs and organizations, from individual artists, from within.

Cultural vitality, then, is the health and resiliency of each category of our personal interaction with culture:

- Our category of participation,
- The places we live, play and work,
- And the source from which we get our culture.

Not only do we discover that, given the depth and variety of ways we all participate, that cultural vitality has an effect on every person who lives in, works in, or visits Boulder. It is a concept for which we all have a role to play. However, it also implies specificity. The depth of participation, the variety of places and sources, indicates the degree to which an individual has responsibilities to the rest of the community.

Another valuable definition of Cultural Vitality comes from The Urban Institute and their 2006 study, Cultural Vitality in Communities: Interpretation and Indicators.

Cultural vitality is the evidence of creating, disseminating, validating, and supporting arts and culture as a dimension of everyday life in communities.

The authors go on to write that this definition:

... recognizes arts and cultural participation as valuable on its own terms and also integral to everyday life, community dynamics, and community conditions. It recognizes that arts and culture are also resources that come out of communities rather than merely resources that are “brought to” communities from the outside. Arts and cultural activity is no longer thought of as only for special occasions.

The Cultural Vitality in Communities study divides cultural vitality into three “domains”: 1) the presence of opportunities for cultural participation, 2) participation itself, and 3) support for cultural participation.³⁵

Thus, the examination, measurement, and designing of programs from the perspective of cultural vitality lead us to think about the whole. Rather than actions taken from an isolated or specialized perspective, we will contemplate the many facets of any decision. There are many direct and indirect connections. The Community Cultural Plan, and the city’s strategies, will be successful when enhancing the full spectrum of cultural vitality. The vision of transforming Boulder into a capital of creativity can only be accomplished with this approach to breadth and depth.

³⁵ Jackson, Maria Rosario et. al., Cultural Vitality in Communities: Interpretation and Indicators, (12-14, The Urban Institute, 2006)

Creative Identity

There are several creative capitals. We think of New York, Chicago, L.A.: big cities that provide the inescapable gravity of cultural activity. Yet we also think of Taos, Marfa, and Ann Arbor. The spectrum and variety of cities that are centers of cultural leadership are diverse. Among the components of a creative capital we could measure in all these places is the way their identity impacts the decisions they make.

Identity for a city is an extension of the city's personality. This might be perceived as "brand", but it is much more as well. In one sense, the identity of a city is a process by which an individual comes to know Boulder. This process contains five steps:

An individual comes to hear about Boulder through inputs. They have heard Boulder casually mentioned on the news as the location of a Federal agency, or featured in a television show as the backdrop for a story. Someone tells them about the great time they had there, or when they passed through in the Sixties. From these inputs, a set of expectations is established. Boulder is a place for natural beauty, innovative science and technology, or healthy living. Next they directly experience Boulder by visiting or working in the city. The expectations are confirmed or refuted. Their memories of time in the city come next. Will these memories be extraordinary and inspiring? The stories they tell others contribute to how Boulder's identity is perpetuated.

Identity also has an internal aspect; the people who live in Boulder also are impacted by the identity. Though the sequence of building this identity may be more fluid, the components are the same. Inputs include community conversations, the local media, and government speech. The experience may be more developed, adding neighborhoods, schools, and churches to the restaurants and cultural destinations. The stories they tell are more personal, emotional, and impactful.

To achieve the vision, we all can contribute to each step in the process of building identity. This is not to say that we all will speak with one voice; the vocal diversity of our opinions is a positive part of our identity.

APPENDIX TEN: STATE ARTS AGENCY FACT SHEET

Note: this document contains the “advantages” of operational support as referenced above.

State Arts Agency Fact Sheet

GENERAL OPERATING SUPPORT

General operating support (GOS) grants are a mechanism for providing flexible, unrestricted funds to grantees. Rather than funding a particular project, these grants provide support to the organization as a whole and can be used for either programming or administration. State arts agencies are an important source of GOS, which is not available from the National Endowment for the Arts and which many foundations and corporate funders do not offer. State arts agencies play an important role in making flexible dollars accessible to many different kinds of organizations, including small, rural and community based groups.

GOS is a popular form of support among grantees and offers a variety of advantages to both the grant maker and the recipient:

- GOS grants maintain the autonomy of grantees, allowing them to allocate the dollars to their most pressing needs.
- GOS awards tend to be more predictable over time, which helps organizations maintain continuity of services to their communities.
- Because GOS funds are flexible, grantees can use the funds in more opportunistic or entrepreneurial ways than project-restricted funds often allow.
- Grants for GOS come with stringent accountability and management requirements that incentivize and perpetuate good business practices among arts organizations.
- Because the grantee—not the grant maker—ultimately defines the activities for which GOS funds are used, this funding mechanism can reduce “mission drift” among grantees and can help to curtail the proliferation of programs designed solely to appeal to funders.
- GOS awards strengthen the nonprofit arts infrastructure within a state and deepen working relationships between funders and core grantees.

GOS dollars awarded:	$81,410,925
Share of all SAA grant dollars:	37%
Median grant size:	$6,761
Number of GOS grants awarded:	4,711
Share of all grants:	23%
Number of communities receiving a GOS grant:	1,499

Grant funding: State arts agencies invest more than $81 million in organizations through operating support grants. As a portion of all state arts agency grants, these grants have held steady, making up about a quarter of all grants and more than a third of total grant funds.

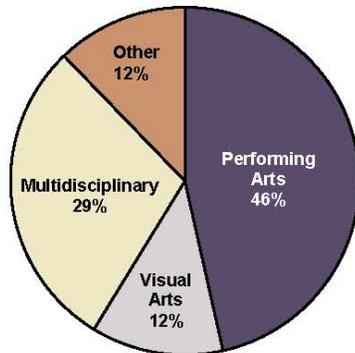

GOS grants tend to be larger in size than awards designed to support particular projects. In fiscal year 2013, the median size of state arts agencies' GOS awards was $6,761. By comparison, the median size of other types of project-oriented grants was $2,817.

By Recipient Type

Other artistic disciplines include media arts, interdisciplinary and design. Community recipients include media, parks and recreation, and social service organizations. Education recipients include arts programs within higher education institutions. Other recipients include non-arts museums, historical societies and humanities councils. Figures represent data from fiscal year 2013 or the most recent information available. Statistics reflect only grants awarded; they do not reflect other state arts agency programs and services.

Many state arts agencies offer GOS funding on a multiyear basis. Funding organizations over a longer period of time provides a more stable source of income, streamlines grants administration for the state arts agency and reduces the reporting burden for grantees. To qualify for operating support, most state arts agencies require applicants to have a long funding history and very favorable panel reviews. For organizations seeking operating support for the first time, many state arts agencies offer entry points through separate programs geared to meet the needs of new applicants.

Capacity building and technical assistance: In addition to funding, state arts agencies offer a wide variety of services that strengthen the capacity of nonprofit arts organizations. Many state arts agencies offer targeted training and technical assistance for new, emerging and small arts organizations, addressing issues unique to these types of groups. State arts agencies offer consultation and training to address specific areas of concern, such as financial health, leadership development and long-range planning. Some state arts agencies also offer tools to help organizations self-assess their institutional strengths and weaknesses.

Networking and peer learning: State arts agencies convene constituents in a variety of ways to facilitate learning and collaboration. These convenings include statewide conferences, where the entire arts community gathers for networking and learning from peers and outside experts. State arts agencies offer smaller gatherings for groups of constituents focused on specific topics, as well as site visits where peers offer guidance and advice for a single organization. In recent years, state arts agencies have taken advantage of new technologies and held some convenings on-line, allowing for greater accessibility and a wider range of learning experiences.

National Assembly of State Arts Agencies

The National Assembly of State Arts Agencies (NASAA) represents the nation's state and jurisdictional arts agencies and serves as a clearinghouse for data and research about public funding and the arts. This report draws on data from state arts agencies' final descriptive reports of grant-making activity submitted annually to the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) and NASAA. NASAA's collection of grant-making statistics is supported in part through a cooperative agreement with the NEA. For more information on the work of state arts agencies, call 202-347-6352, email nasaa@nasaa-arts.org or visit www.nasaa-arts.org.
