POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

MEDIA POLICY

EFFECTIVE DATE: June 1, 2005

LAST REVISED: June 1, 2005

Frank Bruno, City Manager

I. POLICY

It shall be the policy of the city of Boulder to cooperate with the media and to maintain an atmosphere of open communication. Information shall be released to the media in an impartial, accurate and timely fashion. Because the media often work on tight deadlines, it is important that all departments respond as soon as practical when the City Manager's Media Relations staff requests information or a spokesperson. City of Boulder employees are expected to use good judgment and to represent the city in a professional manner.

II. PURPOSE

Developing and maintaining a positive and mutually beneficial relationship with members of the news media is essential to the city of Boulder's goal of keeping the public informed. Achieving an effective relationship between city officials and the media requires honesty, trust, and a dedication of resources and staff. The city of Boulder is committed to maintaining positive relations with the media, allowing them easy access to the decision makers and providing a clear understanding of decision-making processes and relevant information.

III. RESPONSIBILITIES FOR NEWS RELEASES

It is ultimately the responsibility of the City Manager's Media Relations staff to send news releases to the public/media. Releases will be sent to the media list and will be posted on the city of Boulder's Web site. News Releases are released using the following guidelines:

Each department will have a designated Media Liaison/PIO. That person is responsible for coordinating news releases from the department and sending them to the City Manager's Media Relations staff for final edits and for release. News releases from the Police and Fire Departments may be sent out by the Public Safety Public Information Officer (PIO). Guidelines for preparing a news release are available on the Public Affairs IntraWeb page. A list of current Media Liaisons is also available on the IntraWeb.

IV. ORGANIZATION OF PUBLIC INFORMATION

Directors shall be responsible for ensuring that the Media Liaison in their departments contact the City Manager's Media Relations staff as soon as practical about major incidents and other events that may generate media interest. Directors shall be responsible for assigning a staff member to cover for the Media Liaison, including the Public Safety PIO, during vacations, sick time or if the Media Liaison resigns.

V. PROCEDURES

A. Media Inquiries

The City Manager's Media Relations staff should be contacted by the Media Liaison if a media inquiry is about a significant, sensitive or controversial issue that may generate further press coverage. Designated city of Boulder employees will respond to the media in a courteous, timely and factual manner. Employees will respond to media inquiries as soon as practical, as reporters are often working on deadline. Likewise, public records requests from the media will be fulfilled as soon as practical and at least within the time frame required by the Access to Public Records Policy and state law. Generally, the Media Liaison in each department will take the initial call from the media and may either answer their questions or refer them to another employee that is an expert on the topic. Efforts should be made to notify that employee of the referral. Employees who receive a call directly from the media should inform the Media Liaison in their department (according to department policy).

B. Interviews

The City Manager's Media Relations staff and/or the designated department Media Liaison is responsible for assisting the media by conducting interviews himself or herself or coordinating interviews with other city staff. Employees contacted directly by the media for interviews shall notify their Media Liaison. Check with your Media Liaison for departmental guidelines on who should conduct interviews. Employees must remember that when talking with the media all conversations should be considered "on the record" and subject to being quoted.

Content Restrictions. The city of Boulder does not attempt to restrict the dissemination of factual information. However, certain subject matter must not be commented upon by employees due to the inherent conflict that can arise from city employees being participants in certain kinds of news gathering.

a. City of Boulder employees shall not, during working hours or with city equipment, comment for or about situations occurring in other jurisdictions without the approval of their Department Director.

b. City employees who are not policy makers shall not comment on policies during working hours or using city equipment without prior approval from the policy maker to whom they report. City Council ultimately decides public policy for the organization. Employees who are policy makers include the City Manager, Assistant City Managers, City Attorney, Deputy and Assistant City Attorneys and Department Directors. Department Directors may authorize specific department staff members to comment on department level policy issues. Policy making employees are not required to comment on matters of policy, but may be subject to discipline for expressing policy positions that are contrary to either established city policy or the direction of their immediate supervisor. Policy making employees must take reasonable steps to confirm city policy before making comments on matters of policy. This policy shall not be construed to prohibit city of Boulder employees from commenting on city policies outside of working hours and without the use of city equipment when necessary to represent their personal interests or express their point of view.

c. It is recognized that all employees have the right to their personal points of view regarding any issue. However, the expression of personal points of view on matters of city business or city policy may not be done with city stationery or equipment, or during working hours. Therefore, city employees who write letters to the editor of any newspaper expressing their personal point of view may not use official city stationery or equipment or write letters during working hours. City employees who write letters to the editor of any newspaper during working hours expressing their professional point of view as a city of Boulder employee must first obtain Director approval. Policy makers may express their independent professional views on any matter of city business or policy in their capacity as official representatives of the city of Boulder. If an employee chooses to identify himself or herself as a city employee in any personal letter or e-mail to the editor concerning a personal point of view on a matter of city business or policy, or if an employee is likely to be recognized by name as a city employee, he or she must include language which states the views set forth in the letter do not represent the views of the city, but rather, are the employee's personally held opinions. Similar disclaimers must be given if an employee addresses a public meeting, participates in a radio talk show, or is interviewed for a radio or television program unless the employee is officially representing the city. Employees who are representing the city in any of the above formats should be and must identify themselves as an official spokesperson for the city.
